VOLUME 15

Northeast Comprehensive High School 1646 Upper River Road Macon, Georgia 31211 ey, Mattie! How's it going?"
"Oh, okay, I guess. How 'bout you?"
"Pretty good."

"Good grief! The hallways sure are crowded these days."

"Yeah, I know what you mean. You just about have to push your way through."

"By the way, Suzi, are you gonna go see the registrar about your schedule?"

"You bet! I'm gonna slip in there tomorrow morning before first period unless my bus is late . . . again."

"Girl, you're lucky. When your bus is late it's no sweat. When my boyfriend makes me late, I get into big trouble. In fact, if I'm late one more time, I'll get sent home . . . for three days! You eating lunch today?"

"No! I hate waiting in that awful line. Besides, by the time I get to the serving line, there's nothin' left but dry 'soyburgers' and cold, clammy French fries."

"Aw, come on, girl. Maybe we can 'stick' in front of LaShawn or somebody. If we get caught, all they'll do is put us at the end of the line and we'd be no worse off than we are now . . . Hey, Mike! Where're you going in such a hurry?"

"Yo! Didn't you hear the P.A., Mattie? We've got a senior rep meeting in Mr. Johnson's room in five minutes."

"You're kidding, right? I didn't hear anything, did you, Suzi?"

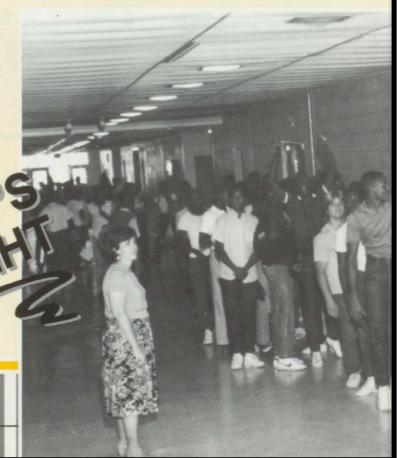

"Well, maybe, but all I heard was that blasted beep!"

I KNOW

ASSUMING AN 'E.F. HUTTON' POSE, students in Mrs. Carole Ford's third period English 10 Honors class strain to hear the voice on the intercom. Repairs on the lightning-plagued intercom continued into the new school year.

GETTING LONGER BY THE MINUTE, the first half Lasseter lunch line snakes its way down the main hall. Mrs. Kathleen Wheeler, teacher on lunch duty, keeps order. Faculty members are assigned duty responsibilities in hallways, outside, or in the lunchroom areas for at least twenty minutes of their lunch period.

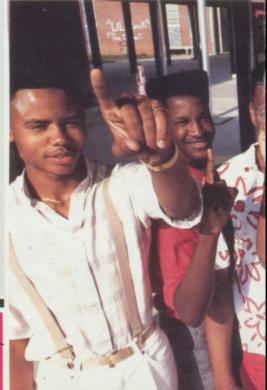

MASS CONFUSION SEEMS NOR-MAL in Lasseter hallways as students scatter in every direction on their way from supervision to second period. Mrs. Gladys Barnes, a custodian, waits for the halls to clear. A school enrollment of nearly 1,300 sometimes made class break chaotic.

MS. ELEANOR TAYLOR, administrative intern, searches the computer memory for the number of times senior Joe Trigger (center) has been late to school as two buddies, senior Leonard Pitts and sophomore Greg Fields, look on. The computer record of tardies and disciplinary notices made 'sliding by' a little tougher.

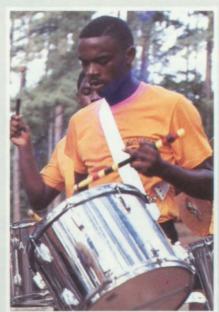

BANNERS TO BOOST SCHOOL SPIRIT are just one aspect of the Spirit Club's responsibilities. Adviser Kathi Tyson puts the last bit of tape on the Therrell banner. SHOWING THAT RAIDER TEAM SPIRIT, Ikiea Battle, DeWayne Gray, William DeShazer, Michael Towles, and Lorenzo Anderson remind us that Northeast is tops with them.

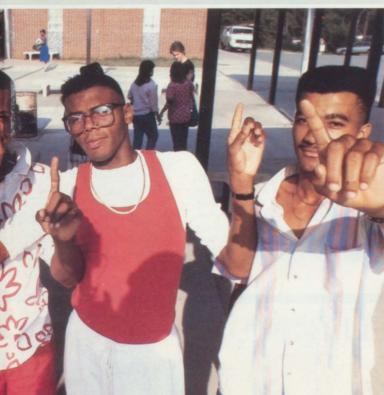

MASTERING PHYSICAL SCIENCE sometimes takes some extra work oneon-one. Mrs. Gail Lewis, science instructor, re-explains a concept to junior LaShonda Taylor in a quick moment after class. Students find that most faculty members welcome questions when students aren't sure they understand.

CONCENTRATING ON THE CADENCE, drummer Dexter Miller sweats out the final moments of the sneak preview show for family, faculty, and friends, which capped off summer band camp. Band members lived in tents for a week at Camp Benjamin Hawkins.

'm so mad, Patti, I can hardly see straight!"
"What in the world is the matter with you, Eric?"

"You didn't see the paper this morning?"

"Nope, sure didn't. Why? What was in it?"

"Oh, there was just another article in there that put Northeast down . . . again!"

"That's just great! What now?"

"One of our rowdies got harassed for loitering. As usual, the reporter went out of his way to connect him with Northeast — even though he hasn't been in school in over a year and the incident had nothing to do with school!"

"Oh, man. That just makes me sick! There really aren't that many teen hangouts around here."

"Yeah, Patti — we're never gonna break that bad image no matter what we do."

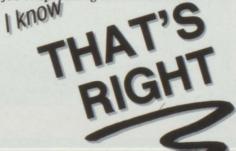

"Why don't they write about the good things over here — the blood drives and all the community projects the vocational clubs do! We can't be all bad!"

"And what about groups like DECA, the Academic Bowl team, the band, the publications that win all kinds of competitions! The Telegraph does a decent job on covering Northeast sports, I guess, as long as you are just talking about the boys' teams. They never give our girls' basketball or track teams the coverage they deserve. Usually, the stuff on them is at the end of the story on the boys. With as many championships as they've won, they deserve more than that!

"Another thing — Patti. Everybody puts us down because we're the smallest public school. That just means we know each other better."

"That's straight! I love Northeast. I think we've got a great student body and a faculty that cares about us as people."

"Good times at Northeast — that's the best kept secret in town! We can't wait for Macon to discover the truth, because most people have already made up their minds without knowing the facts. We've just gotta tackle the job of spreading the word ourselves."

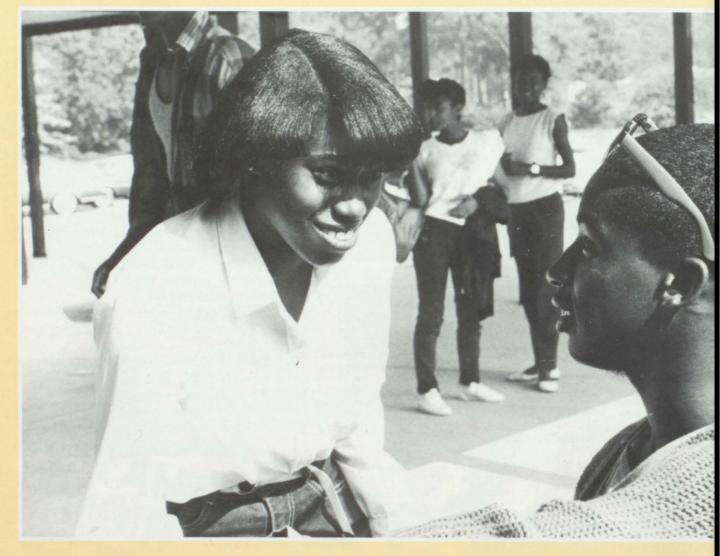

Living the life the right life

"LaShawn, this is really a great school, isn't it?"

"Yeah, James. I think it's pretty cool."

"I KNOW THAT'S RIGHT!"

SPIRIT IS ALREADY SOARING outside at lunchbreak just before the first pep rally of the year. Held during sixth period for Central football game, the pep rally climaxed with the announcement that the seniors had won the spirit chain contest sponsored by DECA.

LINED UP ALONG THE BREEZEWAY, the long yellow line of school buses begins to fill as students spill from the buildings. Some eighty percent of the students ride the twenty-five buses which serve the senior high campus, several of them carrying multiple loads.

IN THE WARMTH OF THE SUN of late September, two seniors, Jackie Brown and Rick Cornelius, enjoy a relaxed moment under the breezeway during lunchbreak.

STUDENT LIFE

What do you think of high school life?

"Make the best out of it. You'll live this time only once."

> Basil Freeman Senior

"High school could be a little more fun if students made it that way."

> Shanel Bobo Junior

"High school is a good place to start seeing the reality of the world."

> Kenneth Wilder Sophomore

"I love high school. Just to hear that I'm finally in high school gives me a chill."

> Ann Solomon Freshman

"High school is great. But we have some 30% of the student body who are immature and have no idea what they come to school for. They think that this is only a place to play, dance, and socialize."

Student Life

The coming of August meant it was Back to the routine

Ring, ring! It's time to get back tire, etc. to the ol' school routine.

For returning students, it wasn't too hard. Junior Lisa Flagg said, "I had no trouble at all finding my classes, because I've been here for three years."

For some others, it might not be so easy. Sophomore Kim Watkins said, "I had trouble finding my P.E. class because my schedule had a room number for it instead of 'the gym.""

Students coming back to school found a new emphasis on tardiness. After being late to school three times, students were assigned major detention. That meant no more lame excuses like oversleeping, being bus-left, having a flat

Also, beginning with this year, students must pass five classes to remain eligible for interscholastic sports.

Students got a big scare about the grading scale as well. For approximately the first nine weeks, the grade scale was A=94-100, B=85-93, C=75-84, D=70-74, and F=69 and under. This was the result of both a state ruling and a local decision. The state decision was that all school systems must use 70 as the passing score. The redistribution of the grades above 70 was up to the local boards of education.

FRESHMAN CARLENE WILSON HURRIES TO CLASS while three other freshman--Scott Tisdale, Kelly Marsh, and Clay Connell — take time to cut the fool.

A CROWD OF STUDENTS make their way between buildings in unseasonably warm September weather.

"NORTHEAST IS NUMBER ONE," say upperclassmen Johnny Sapp, Melette Jackson, Kim Gray, Michael Glover, Clarissa Collins, and Todd Dean.

FRESHMAN TRECEDA COBBS and Greta Brantley work hard to get into the high school work.

RESTING ON A BENCH at lunchbreak, senior Rick Cornelius displays a unique style of dress.

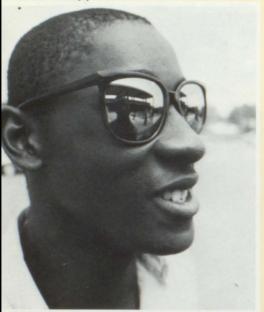

TAKING PART IN A FASHION FAD, junior Tyrone Brown adds a bit of flare to jeans worn by freshman Kathy Hill.

JUNIORS GREG FIELDS, Lonnie Kratz, Butch Koch, and Vickie Glover celebrate TGIF in the Lasseter lunchroom.

SENIORS CHARLENE SMITH and Rochelle Hicks show their feelings about their final year.

FRESHMAN SHANNON STANTON puts in some heavy study time during lunch.

SENIOR MARIE SLATTON smiles a friendly goodbye to Northeast High for the weekend.

Back to the routine —

- Continued from page 8

In the September board meeting, there was enough pressure from parents and students to cause board members to reject the plan in operation since the beginning of school. In the October meeting, a new plan was approved which simply dropped the D, and returned A, B, and C to their original numerical values.

Bus schedules had also changed since last year. Students new to the senior high weren't the only ones getting up earlier. Junior Pamela Turner said, "I used to ride the bus at 7:25, but now it comes earlier and at a different place. I don't like that because I may not be able to make it to the bus stop."

Freshman Tanya Goolsby said, "My bus came on time the first day but after that it started coming ten minutes later, but I don't mind that."

Getting back into the routine also means the opportunity of making special friends and participating in school clubs and sports, but some students and faculty members gave up summer time, too.

Senior Talitha Sherman said, "I gave up some of my time for band practice and camp."

Sophomore Chris Peavy said, "I play golf for the school, so I had to practice all summer."

The general impression was that the juniors and seniors were back into the groove by the end of the second week, but for the sophomores, and especially the freshmen, it took a little longer.

DOING A DOUBLETAKE, senior Derrick Nash checks out the mini's on juniors Tanzy Hughes and Yartease Davis.

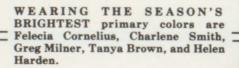

MARSHA BOOKER, TERRENCE JENKINS, Roy Pitts, Consuela Alexander, and Alfred Bailey strike a casual pose in their oversized sweaters and shirts.

TODD DEAN AND WINDY JENKINS show that denim is always in style. Felecia Cornelius wears a jumper with the overalls look, while Sean Walker wears the real thing.

Students go to great lengths to Step out in fashionable style

There are a number of different fashion styles at Northeast, some copied from others, some originally created, but most are a mix of original ideas with what others are doing.

Namebrands are still hot, but there is a difference in how they are being worn. Gucci shirts, for example. It used to be that people would buy several of them in different colors and wear them in exactly the same way. Now students buy one and exert their creativity in finding as many ways to wear it as possible. Other hot names are I.O.U., Guess, Union Bay, Levi, Badge 58, Jordache, Sassoon, and Reebok.

To most people, namebrands are important. Sophomore Helen Harden said, "Namebrands make a difference because the clothing lasts longer and fit better than noname clothes."

Ms. Pamela Brown, English teacher, said, "The name tells me that the general quality of the outfit and fabric is pretty good."

Junior Tammy Palmer doesn't think the namebrand clothing is worth the extra money. She said, "The only difference in clothes is the name. If there wasn't the name, all clothes would be the same."

Do students compete in what they wear? Why not? They compete in athletics and academics, why not in appearance?

Junior Cathy Smith said, "My best friend is Heather Land, and she is my best competition."

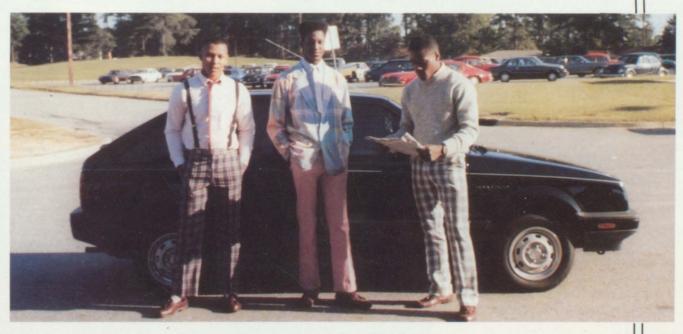

"I find the most competition with other girls who have jobs and dress nice," said senior Chiquita Reid. Where do Northeast students shop?

The majority of the girls say they shop at Body Shop, Contempo Casuals, the Limited, Ups 'n' Downs, and Macy's — all found in the Macon Mall — and the Crate on Riverside Drive. The guys shop at Chess King, County Seat, Macy's and J. Riggins at the Mall, and at Rich's in Atlanta.

Sophomore Chris Veal said, "Where you shop does matter because different department stores have a different quality of clothes."

Mrs. Judy Fultz, an English teacher, said, "If a store sells what I like and I can afford it, I'll buy it, even if it's at a small store."

CONSERVATIVELY CASUAL OR SUNDAY FANCY, Todd Dean, Tyrone Ross, Reginald Jones, Alfred Bailey, and Daniel Zeigler show that blazers can be worn with just about anything.

MAKING WEEKEND PLANS during class change are sophomore LaRisa Hollins and senior Mark Mitcham.

Dating alone or in a crowd is just

Being with someone special

Dating — that important part of a teenager's life in which he looks for characteristics he might want in a life partner — has changed much in the last few years, according to an informal poll.

Yesterday, it was meeting a bunch of friends at the drive-in. Today it's going with the person you like to a park or just somewhere to be alone. More couples today prefer being together alone than being in a crowd.

Junior Aimee Spires said, "I just want to be with my boyfriend and talk about the things that are important to both of us."

Senior Mark Cook said, "Going out and having a good time with the person I love is the perfect date for me."

More couples are talking and entertaining each other rather than, say, going to a movie and being entertained.

Steady dating appears to be the rule at Northeast these days. Sophomore Tina Pitts said, "Steady dating is the only way to have a relationship."

Junior Tammy Rudin said, "Dating is sharing my feelings with someone I love."

Sophomore James Manson has even bigger goals for dating. He said, "Dating is the process of beginning to be married."

Of course, some students said they didn't want to be tied down, and for them, going steady was out of the question.

Sophomore Lisa Glover explained, "You're only young once and should live it up while you can."

JUNIOR KELVIN HAMMONDS TELLS junior Yartease Davis why she should go to the game with him this weekend.

MEETING AT THEIR LOCKER, junior Henry Payne and sophomore Tracie Dixon take a little time for themselves as they prepare for class.

ESCAPING THE CROWD AT LUNCH, juniors Johnny Boutwell and Aimee Spires discuss plans for their weekend.

TRENDA TURK, A SOPHOMORE, gives senior Carol Gibbs her order at the Spring Street McDonald's.

DELWIN UNDERWOOD, A JUNIOR, packs chicken for a customer at Lee's Country Fried Chicken on Shurling Drive.

JUNIOR GREGORY BLOUNT puts groceries in a customer's car at the Piggly Wiggly.

SENIOR BRUCE BRYANT PUSHES a cart of groceries for a Kroger's customer.

Balancing school, social life, and jobs worth it for Making the big bucks

Balancing a parttime job with your social life and school life is like going without Reeboks and pizza for a year, but Northeast students can handle it. From McDonald's to an army surplus store, students are making the bucks.

For what, you may ask? Well, according to an informal poll, most juniors and seniors are putting their money towards college and cars, while sophomores and freshmen who work are spending their money on clothes and entertainment.

Choosing a job can be a difficult situation. Most people try to find a job that they like, but sometimes it isn't that easy. Sometimes teenagers have to take the job that will take them. Junior Henry Payne, who works at Shoney's, said, "I chose my job because they were the only ones who would hire me."

While most students have jobs in fast food restaurants or as clerks in department stores, some find unusual jobs. Senior Kim McDowell works at the Shurling Library "because it's pleasant, and I can learn a lot."

Senior Kim Williams, who works at the Eastview Nursing Home, said, "I enjoy working with old people."

Sometimes there is an effect of the different days and hours of work on the student's school and social life. Junior Lisa Flagg, who works with Shellvins, said, "My hours haven't affected my schoolwork because I get off at a sensible time."

Senior Al Scott, who works at Little Caesar's, has more of a problem. He said, "I sometimes only get two or three hours of sleep because of my late hours."

Starting a new job is a new experience for many. Sophomore Marsha Booker said, "I thought that it would be hard but I enjoy my work which makes it easier."

Junior Tonya Drewry, who works at the Army Surplus Store, said, "Working to me is more than a job; it's an adventure."

RODERICK SOLOMON, A SENIOR, packs Chicken McNuggets at McDonald's.

SENIOR LISA DIXON RINGS up the groceries at Piggly Wiggly.

ISRAEL ORR, A SENIOR, prices a new shipment of eggs at Piggly Wiggly.

More than you think is involved in

Feeding Northeast

The average student probably has no idea how hard it is to feed Northeast.

The lunchrooms start cooking at 8 a.m., and it takes two and a half to three hours to prepare the normal lunch for an average of 760-800 students per day. With so much food to prepare, it takes ten fulltime cafeteria workers.

More surprising than that is the amount of food it takes to fill up all the 'hollow legs' around here.

For example, take parts of one of the more popular meals. To create just 264 servings of French fries, it takes 60 frozen packages of 12.5 pounds each. To give each of 276 students half an orange takes 138 oranges. To feed 480 students a slice, it takes five huge boxes of pizza.

NOW IN ITS FOURTH YEAR, the salad bar option is a favorite of many students including Lucretia Reynolds, Sarah Hall, Carlene Wilson, and Juandalynn Harris.

REGGIE MCCOY, A 1986

Figuring out themselves is a start for-

Handling parents

Figuring out parents is tough for some teenagers, partly because the teenagers haven't figured themselves out. Difficulty in expressing what's happening within them translates into difficulty in communicating with others, especially parents.

The most common parent/teen problem is what teenagers perceive as overprotectiveness.

"What really bothers me is the way she keeps asking so many questions about everything — like when I am on the phone or talking to one of my sisters," said LaTrice Riggins, a freshman.

"What really bothers me about parents is that they don't trust me. They feel insecure about me going out with friends. They always ask who they are and where we're going," said Scherryl Miller, a sophomore. Sophomore Chernise Hoges said, "Their attitude bothers me. They never listen long enough to understand. They always have to answer without having heard me out."

"It's not that they are strict and overprotective. They want the best for me, and they don't want me to get hurt. All they are trying to do is show their undying love for me," said Alicia Rhodes, a junior.

Teenagers are generally predictable about what they would change in their relationship to their parents.

"I'd have them give me more money," said freshman Clay Connell.

"Quit treating me like a baby," said senior Walter Solomon.

"What I want is fairness, no punishment, my own telephone line, an allowance, and my curfew extended," said freshman Tina Hazel.

Sharing the best and the worst takes

A very best friend

A best friend is someone special. Junior Audrey Watson said, "A best friend is someone who listens and tries to encourage you to do right. Best friends are very important because they let you in when everybody else puts you out." Audrey found kindness and understanding, what she considers the two most important qualities, four years ago in Tijuana Hillman, another junior.

Freshman Priscilla Howard's best friend is senior Cathy Rogel. They met at the Lakeview Club Apartments. Priscilla said, "A best friend is a person you trust more than all of your other friends. You can tell her anything, and it will be kept between the two of you."

"My best friend, Bonnie Tribble, is someone I can rely on at all times. I can talk to her about anything," said senior Summer Bledsoe. "To make sure the relationship survives tough moments. you just have to take one step at a time to work things out. Our toughest time was when a certain person came to Macon to live and tried to come between us."

Freshman Donna Tisdale's best friend is Mandy Ward, another freshman. Donna said, "We get along great, but when we do fight or fuss, it makes us stronger for harder times and makes our love for each other grow."

Jeff Fowler has been best friends with fellow sophomore Chris Peavy for two years. He said, "We talk things out, and we make them work. When Chris's aunt died. I was there for him because I knew how it felt. When I had problems with my girlfriend, he helped me with them. I love Chris as a brother."

Friends Forever

Friends forever, that's what we'll be. Two of a kind, just you and me. Secrets that we know and share, never to be spoken again, just to show that we care. If you ever need a guide, to help you see the light, I'll be there by your side, just to make things right, and you the same for me. Here for each other, through the good and bad. Whether you're smiling or crying, I'll try to make you happy instead of sad, for friends like you are hard to find. If your world falls apart, and there's nothing left, but the breaking of your heart, And if you're feeling blue just remember that I love you. Yes, friends forever, that's what we'll be. Two of a kind, just you and me.

THE RAIDERS BURST ONTO THE SCENE for Homecoming, the final game of the season, as the Baldwin band and cheerleaders leave the field. Because of the length of the Homecoming halftime, the visiting band performed a pregame show.

Homecoming Week

Sub-freezing weather chills finale of

Homecoming Week

With Homecoming spirit in the air, Northeast began the exciting week with special costume days.

Monday was Kiddie Day and Hair Roller Day. Tuesday, easily the most popular day, was Nerd Day and Hobo Day. Wednesday was Dress-up Day. Thursday, originally scheduled as Opposite Sex Day and Toga Day, at the last moment became Backwards Day and Celebrity Day. Friday, the day of the game, was Jersey Day and School Color Day.

Senior Harold Johnson said, "It was fun dressing up in something that is comfortable so that you don't have to be concerned about your appearance. It all boils down to having fun."

The bottom dropped out of the thermometer for the game against Baldwin which was the final game of the season. A shivering Homecoming Court was presented at halftime to a half-empty Porter Stadium.

The fans that did brave the cold enjoyed themselves. Sophomore Aris Lucas said, "I opened up this Homecoming and so did my friends. I never thought I would go to the game, but I did. I've never had so much fun."

"Hey, I wasn't gonna dress," said Jerel Washington, a sophomore, "but I was going to enjoy myself, so I went."

The final score of the game did little to warm up the crowd as the Raiders fell 6-27.

Homecoming festivities were planned by the senior class representatives and their adviser, Ms. Pam Brown.

WARMING UP THE CROWD FOR THE HALFTIME SHOW, the Raider drummers 'get down' with some rousing cadences.

Give gift of life

A total of 68 pints of blood was collected from Northeast student and faculty donors December 9. The blood drive was co-sponsored by the local chapter of the American Red Cross and eighteen student volunteers.

Mrs. Gwynneth Lamon, faculty adviser, said, "I think it was a good team effort. We had a lot of success with the students donating. The drive was a lot more successful than last year's."

Students and faculty members involved had varied reactions.

Junior Randy Gillis said, "The part I liked best was drinking the Kool-Aid and eating the cookies. Taking the blood wasn't anything."

Mrs. Mary Landrum, art teacher, said, "I feel like I am helping somebody because blood can be used in so many ways. Mine is Opositive, which is most needed. It is in great demand. I would recommend to anyone to give blood, but check with your physician to make sure you are healthy first."

Senior Steve Sims said, "To give blood is a blessing, knowing that you were healthy enough to give."

"I don't think that giving blood is dangerous. The nurses make sure that every part of the process is safe and clean," said junior Kelvin McElroy.

Student volunteers assisting in registration, canteen, and other duties included Nicole Williams, Jackie Hill, Treniscia Stephens, Chiquita Roberts, Danielle Allen, Kim McDowell, Cindy Chaffin, Ralph Redd, Russell McClendon, Kimberly Williams, Rosalyn Wiley, Tracey Eason, Kurt Raeuchle, Kim Jarrell, Geraldine McGirt, Pamela Glenn, Lee Roland, and Sabrina Wright.

Seventeen Superlatives

All seventeen of the seniors selected by the faculty as Superlatives for the Class of 1987 have specific plans for the future.

Four seniors are planning medical careers. Jacqueline Hill wants to go to medical school after attending Auburn or Emory, as does Andre Bobo, after attending Clemson or USC. Audrey Harris wants a career in nursing, although she is undecided on the college. Andrea McCarthy will major in physical therapy at Georgia State University.

Four more have science in their future. Alvin Harmon plans to major in chemistry at Morehouse; Angela Spann, in computer science at Mercer University; Rosalyn Wiley, in chemical engineering at Tuskegee University; and Joel Jenkins, in electrical engineering at MIT, Harvard, or Georgia Tech. Joel is also considering a career in law.

Windy Jenkins is headed for a career in broadcast journalism after attending the University of Georgia.

Jacquita White and Brian Smith are considering their options in the military. Jacquita wants to be a career Air Force pilot; Brian is interested in the Army or the Air Force, and ultimately a doctorate in business administration.

Still five more seniors are looking to the business world. Kim Williams and Barbara Billingslea want to major in accounting, as does Geraldine McGirt, who plans to be a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) after attending either the University of Georgia or Georgia College. Sabrina Wright wants to major in business administration at Howard University. Tracey Hawkins plans to major in business at Georgia State to prepare to be a marketing expert or a business merchandiser.

Chiquita Roberts is undecided between Valdosta State College and Fort Valley State College and between career choices of education and business.

Some advice from the experts:

Underclassmen who wish to follow in the footsteps of the successful Senior Superlatives should find their words of advice helpful:

"Life is not an easy road, and no one said it was fair. The best we all can do is live by our own values and strive to be the best we can be." — Barbara Billingslea.

"Continue to work hard through your senior year. Don't relax just because you are a senior." — Andre Bobo.

"Strive for the best, but don't mix play with work. Realize that a small amount of studying can give you better-than-average grades." — Alvin Harmon.

"Believe in yourself. Strive to be the best that you know you can be. Remember, nothing good comes easy." — Audrey Har-

"Never think of failure as defeat. Think of it more as knowledge acquired and as an experience in life that will make you a stronger and wiser person." — Tracey Hawkins.

"Never say never. No matter what kind of predicament you find yourself in, never give up. Never assume anything; for who knows what tomorrow will bring." — Jacqueline Hill.

"Never give up the struggle to become the best that you can be. Always remember what your priorities are." — Joel Jenkins.

"Keep on track. In the end, you'll be glad you did." — Windy Jenkins.

"Make God the focal point of your life, and success will follow." — Andrea Mc-Carthy.

"Strive for the very best. I can tell you from experience that hard work and studying does pay off. Who knows? When you're a senior, you may be a Senior Superlative."

— Geraldine McGirt.

"Get involved, work hard, and try to be the best person you can be, giving 110 percent. Most of all, put God first. He is all it takes." — Chiquita Roberts.

"I would like to advise the upcoming seniors first to realize that they are seniors, and they should act accordingly. The second thing is that being a senior is not inexpensive, so they should have a job or else a lot of money. Seriously, they should really be prepared for what lies ahead, and they should take everything seriously from the start." — Brian Smith.

"Work hard and take your schoolwork seriously because, in the end, it will pay off."

— Angela Spann.

"Have faith in yourself and in God. Obey your parents, because without them, you wouldn't exist. Don't get involved in drugs because they will hamper your development." — Jacquita White.

"Strive for excellence in your every endeavor. Don't let anything stand in the way of your education or your new success. Never say that 'you can't.' Carry yourself as far as you can in life. Most importantly, believe in God." — Rosalyn Wiley.

"Do your best in all your subjects. In the end, all your hard work will pay off." — Kimberly Williams.

"Decide upon a career goal and take courses which apply or will be helpful to your career." — Sabrina Wright.

Honoring Martin Luther King, Jr. means

Living the dream

With joined and uplifted hands, singing "We Shall Overcome," the faculty, staff, and student body dramatically symbolized the very spirit of keeping alive the dream of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

The special assembly program titled "Living the Dream," organized by the Student Council. featured the talents of the band. the chorus, the show choir, and a number of Student Council members.

Individuals on the program included Jacqueline Hill, Andre Bobo, Carla Fults, Nathaniel Snead, Windy Jenkins, Cynthia Brown, and Delphia Boynton.

Although students, in general, were disappointed that the first national holiday in honor of the late Dr. King was not a school holiday, at least the commemoration of the holiday with an assembly program made the day special.

Sophomore Charlena Williams said, "The program was very touching. It really was a very emotional event."

Junior John Wiggins said, "The program was full of warm feelings and increased my beliefs."

The 1987-88 school calendar for Bibb County Schools will include a school holiday in honor of the late Dr. King.

"Okay, that's straight. Later on." He walks back toward his friend.

"Play it off, play it off!" he says to himself as he approaches his friend.

"Bust!"

"Bust? What do you mean, bust?"

"Don't even front. I know she dogged you out."

"No problem, no problem."

"Later for the babes. Let's go munch out."

"Whatever."

The two guys walk to McDonald's, where the same girl sees the friend for the first time. "Hey, that nerbert's friend is one awesome hunk."

The guys approach the counter. "Yo, man. Me and my friend are gonna need a lot of grub. We're ready to grease."

Girl approaches the friend. "Hey, sweet, how bout me and you breeze through this mall together?"

"No, I'm not the one . . . "

"Stop perpetrating, and trying to diss me."

"Yo, man, this babe is like spoiling my appetite. Let's creep on back to the crib."

Fun, yes, but tougher than xou might think

When most people go to games and they see the cheerleaders, they probably don't think the cheerleaders do much more than yell their heads off at the games. They're wrong.

Cheerleading is more athletic than most people guess. Without hours and hours of practice time, they couldn't perform strenuous, difficult, and dangerous stunts and pyramids. They practice during the summer; and they train and practice through two athletic seasons.

"There's more to cheerleading than just looking good out there," said Mrs. Billy Allen, ninth grade and B-team cheerleading sponsor. "This is a sport, and we work like the other athletes."

There's more to cheerleading than the specific skills, however.

"It's hard to keep the crowd's spirit level high and keep on cheering when the team has a losing record. Junior co-captain Shanel Bobo said, "It's not easy to keep cheering when the team is losing, but if we don't try to spark the crowd to back the players, who will? It's very frustrating at times."

How important are the cheerleaders? Other students see a need for them.

Senior Kenneth Sanders said, "The cheerleaders inspire the teams to win and help build up the momentum for the crowd."

Even though the state's QBE ruling is that all athletes must pass five of six classes, Mrs. Clara Hollins, the adviser, insists that her cheerleaders pass all six classes to cheer.

Sophomore Cynthia Cruz said. "That rule is hard, but it also makes our cheerleaders work harder. I believe if you work hard and study more, you can pass all six classes."

Because there are games every Friday, and on Tuesdays and Saturdays during basketball, and because when there isn't a game, they still practice for 2-3 hours, getting the lessons done isn't that easy.

Junior Kim Williams said, "We stay up late hours at night doing homework and studying for tests. I myself don't get very much sleep, but it's worth it."

Chiquita Roberts, varsity captain, said, "This year's team seems to be more spirited than ever."

ANOTHER RESPONSIBILI-TY FOR CHEERLEADERS is to create spirit banners for the stadium or in the gym.

Both cross country teams improved their records of a year ago.

Sporting a perfect season of 7-0 until the state meet, the Raiderettes placed eighth in the state, higher than last year when they did not place.

The boys jumped from fifth in the region last year to region runner-ups with a record of 5-3, but were unable to place in state competition.

There were some outstanding individual performances as well.

Tijuana Hillman set a course record of 19:38 during the Northeast Invitational. In the region meet, Candida Finney won first place; Deborah Baldwin, third; and Benita Parker, fourth. Finney was named most valuable cross countrywoman; Hillman, most outstanding cross countrywoman. Named outstanding cross countrywomen were Baldwin, Parker, Stacey Virgil, Zonja Jackson, and Stacey Brown.

Artemus Gordon, who finished sixth in the region meet, was named most valuable cross countryman. Most outstanding cross countrymen included Samuel Johnson, James Williams, Vernon Sims, Walter Solomon, Robert Moore, Dexter Chapman.

Baiderettes finish 2-10; Bear anne All-City again

The varsity softball team dropped to 2-10 for the season, a disappointment from the 5-7 record of a year ago.

Youth and inexperience hampered the team's overall performance, but individual efforts provided a bright spot in an otherwise disheartening picture.

Deborah Beard tied a school record for the most hits in a game (5) and had the highest batting average for the season (.619). Vikki Phillips tied two records: one for most homeruns hit in a single game (2) and other for the most runs scored in a game by an individual (4). She also had six RBI's for the season.

Beard was named the most valuable player; Octavia Clowers, best offensive player; Phillips, best defensive player; Dawn Parker, most improved player; Daphne Anderson, rookie of the season; and Clowers, the coaches' trophy.

Named All-City shortstop for the second year in a row, Beard said, "The majority of the team was inexperienced. With a lot of practice and time, I feel the team will improve tremendously. The other teams we played were more experienced than we were."

Senior pitcher Jackie Hill said, "Our only reason for losing so many games was due to the fact that we gave the games away in the last few innings. Actually, we weren't that bad a team."

Raiders struggle to 3-7, win stunner exer Southwest

Although the Raiders only managed to post a 3-7 season record (one of those being a forfeit by Peach County), 1986 was an improvement over the 0-10 season of the year before.

In fact, when one realizes that four of those losses came at the hands of eventual playoff teams, the record looks even better.

The highlight of the year had to be the stunning 13-6 upset win over Southwest, especially coming as it did, immediately following the crushing 0-51 loss to Central.

Errol Windhom was named outstanding defensive lineman; Joseph Trigger, outstanding defensive back; Kelvin McElroy, outstanding offensive lineman; Cedric Newton, outstanding offensive back; Basil Freeman, most versatile lineman; John Wiggins, most versatile back; David Neeley, most improved lineman; Hubert Hogan, most improved back; David Lucas, coaches' trophy; Lucas, senior with highest GPA; David Clowers, most cooperative player; and Newton, most valuable player.

Named to the All-City team from The Macon Telegraph and News were Newton, first team offensive back, and Hogan, punter on first team defense. Sportswriter Tina Salani said, "Newton, a senior, played both ways for the Raiders and finished sixth in Region 4AAAA in rushing. He had 170 carries for 650 yards and five touchdowns in his tailback spot. Defensively, Newton played linebacker and was the squad's captain. He had 73 solo tackles, 22 assists, three fumble recoveries, and one interception. Hogan, a sophomore, handled punting and played quarterback. He punted 45 times for an average of 29.4 yards. At quarterback he completed 62 of 149 passes for 759 yards and two touchdowns."

Newton said, "Coach Brown never gave up on us. He kept trying, and he was what kept us going through those hard times."

Hogan said, "As a player, I felt good to have Coach Brown as my coach. He is more than a coach; he is like a father to me, and my best friend. I wouldn't be where I am if it wasn't for him. He inspired me, showed me I had to work hard, and taught me things that are important later on in life."

Six others were also recognized in the All-City awards. Lucas made second team running back/receiver; McElroy, Freeman, and Windhom, second team offensive linemen; Trigger, second team defensive back; and Wiggins, honorable mention offensive back.

Raiders finish 2th in state; Stubbs repeats as #2

Raider wrestlers have seemingly come out of nowhere in the state wrestling competition in the last few years.

Ranked 25th in 1985, and 18th in 1986, the Raiders finished 12th this year in a field of 63 schools on the strength of a repeat runner-up performance of heavyweight Charles Stubbs and sixth place finishes of Sam Johnson, Craig Johnson, Keefer Nelson, and Donald Brown.

Stubbs said, "I love physical competition. I prefer wrestling over football because it is a lot more intense. To train for each match mentally, you must concentrate. Concentration is the key, and to be the 'dawg,' be aggressive."

Stubbs had one pin against Central in 17 seconds, four seconds off the school record. Stubbs finished the season 26-4, with 16 pins. He was named most valuable wrestler and was named to the All-Middle Georgia wrestling team.

Not surprisingly, Stubbs' biggest fan is Head Coach Fred Persley. He said, "Charles works harder on his moves and conditioning than most heavyweights. His speed is surprising for a person his size. He has developed a good attitude for wrestling from hard work and personal counseling. It is my hope that these characteristics will carry over into other areas of his life."

Craig Johnson, who wrestled in the 155-lb. weight class had a record of 24-2-1, also was named to the All-Middle Georgia team.

Sam Johnson, 132-lb. class, had a record of 19-6; Keefer Nelson, 145-lb. class, 13-8; and Donald Brown, 138-lb. class, 12-8.

Others with exceptional seasons included Jimmy Bowers, 105-lb. class, 24-2, including 21 pins; Larry Wilson, 126-lb. class, 18-6-1, including one pin against Southwest in 23 seconds; and Marcus Smith, 167-lb. class, 15-5-1.

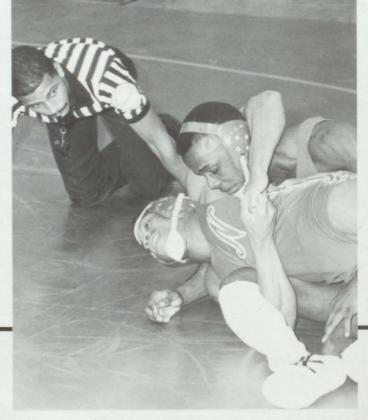

Bowers was named to the All-Middle Georgia second team; Sam Johnson received honorable mention.

Haides edged by three Feints for state championship

Close enough to break a Raider's heart. The boys' basketball team came within only a few points of its first state championship.

Although Mark Smith High School, which ultimately became Northeast, won the title in 1969, and crosstown rival Southwest has won it five times, the title has always eluded the Raiders.

With Southwest sporting nationally-ranked forward Eric Manuel, it looked like it would be another Patriot year, but Southwest was upset in the quarterfinals by Tift County.

A team no one expected to get beyond the early rounds, the Raiders reached the final game, only to be edged 72-75 by Washington High, a team with whom they had split regular season encounters.

Despite the disappointing final loss, the Raiders posted an excellent season record of 22-10.

Head Coach Walter Johnson said, "The success started back from last year's spring workouts. They carried that good attitude through the summer with a combination of a lot of work and intense concentration on the basic fundamentals of the game. The key to our success was having good talent and good concentration. The young men worked well as a team. They played hard and had a strong desire to win."

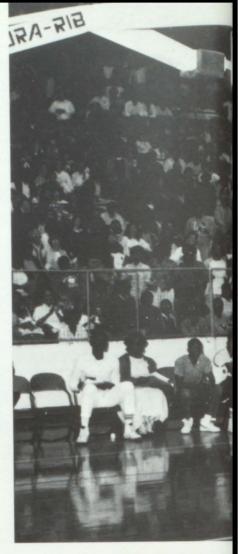

Coach Johnson, who has been head basketball coach at Northeast for 11 years, was named All-Middle Georgia Boys' Coach of the Year.

Kelvin Hammonds, a junior guard, was named to the All-City and All-Middle Georgia team. He had been listed as the number five player in the Middle Georgia Top 20 most of the season. Hammonds, who averaged 21 points, five rebounds, and four assists per game, averaged nearly 30 points a game during tournament action. (Earlier in the season. Hammonds set a school record scoring 41 points against Harper.)

Reginald Finney, a junior forward, who averaged 15 points, 10 rebounds, and four assists, was also named All-City.

Raiderettes falk in region tourney to Southwest

Always a force to be reckoned with in girls' basketball, the Raiderettes turned in a solid 17-9 season performance.

The Raiderettes finished third in the region behind Baldwin and Southwest. Of the nine losses, three each came at the hands of these two rivals. The Baldwin Bravettes were the eventual state champions ultimately ranked 25th in the nation by USA Today. The Southwest Lady Patriots lost to Lowndes in the state quarterfinals.

The Raiderettes were led by junior guard Seleria Newton, who averaged 21 points, five rebounds, and four steals. She shot 40% from the field. Newton set and then broke her own record during the season, first scoring 36 points against Washington, then 40 points against Douglass. Newton, who was listed as the number five player in the Middle Georgia Top 20 most of the season, was named to the All-City team.

Also named to the All-City team was Benita Parker, a senior guard who averaged eight points and four rebounds per game. Parker also appeared in the Top 20 for a while.

$ 9th grade teams develop skills, hear

B-team and ninth grade football players, basketball players, wrestlers, and cheerleaders spend long hours at practice strengthening physical skills, learning game strategies, and developing a sense of teamwork.

Since the crowds are small to non-existent, the subvarsity team members participate less for the roar of the crowd than for the love of the game and for a spot on the varsity in the future.

B-team, Ninth Grade Football

Head B-team Coach Charlie Simmons praised the defense as the principal factor in the 3-1 season finish for the Raiders.

Junior Antonia Davis and sophomore Jeff Wiggins were named the most valuable players. Davis is a quarterback and defensive back; Wiggins, a running back and defensive back.

The ninth graders suffered through a disastrous season in which they lost all six of their games

B-team Basketball

The B-teams had mediocre seasons in which they lost about as many games as they won. While they weren't happy about the seasons, some had personal satisfaction and hopes for the future.

Guard Roderick Finney said,

"To start, you have to be good. Since I want to play varsity, I have to do my best. It's a goal I've set for myself that I hope to achieve.

Forward Katrina Thomas said, "I know I tried hard, and that is important to me. Coach Daniely is something special. It's not every day that you find an understanding coach willing to push you a step forward. It was fun."

Elvin Stewart was named most valuable player for the boys' Bteam; Michael Bond, best offensive player; Rodney Moore, best defensive player.

Monita O'Neal was named most valuable player for the girls' B-team; Yolanda Chester, coaches' award; Linda Jackson, best defensive player.

Ninth Grade Basketball

Boys' Coach Festus Edoimiova said, "There's a lot ot talent and potential on this team, but we were taken right out of our offense and we lacked a few skills on defense.

The coach named Alvin Clyde as the best offensive player and Nickey Zellner, best defensive player.

Coach Edoimioya said, "It's important to have students supporting our basketball teams. This would enable the players to play better." Girls' Coach Judy Whitaker named Sabrina Brown and Katina Shannon as best offensive players, and Kim Brezial and LaTanya Guyton, best defensive

Of the lack of spectators, Coach Whitaker said, "We need support. We would like to see more involvement. We go to the other schools and their students show up. When we don't have a crowd at home, it looks bad for North-

B-team Wrestling

B-team wrestlers were undefeated.

Fred Brown, who went 10-1 in the 155-lb. weight class, said, "Bteam wrestling prepares you for the varsity. It improves your quickness and your physical health. It gives you a feeling of being on the mat for a good time." (Please see SUBVARSITY, page

PEOPLE

Challenges face Bibb leadership

State QBE mandates, local board elections, overcrowded high schools

The biggest stories on the county level included new state regulations, board elections, and plans for expansion.

Athletes face tougher requirements

The Texas "no pass, no play" law made its influence felt in Georgia as Quality Basic Education (QBE) reforms continued to dominate the education scene in Georgia.

With the beginning of the 1986-87 school year, all athletes were required to pass five of their six classes each grading period to remain eligible for interscholastic sports.

Stronger local grade system rejected

Strong protest from parents and students led the Bibb County Board of Education to reject a grade scale proposed by the school superintendent and his staff.

Originally, Dr. Thomas Hagler had proposed that the Bibb County grading scale be distributed as follows: A=94-100; B=85-93; C=75-84; D=70-74; F=69 and under. The change came about when the state mandated last spring that a state passing score be set at 70.

Parents and students who objected to the new scale did so for a variety of reasons. Some felt that it was unfair to the seniors to change the scale on them just when they were competing to be admitted into college. Others felt that the cut-off score to make an A was simply too high.

In any case, the school board voted to reject the proposed scale. In a later meeting, the board accepted a revised scale which returned the top three grades to 1985-86 point values (A=90-100; B=80-89; C=70-79) and simply dropped the D altogether.

Ex-Appling teacher

wins board seat

Dr. Doris Adams, Democratic victor in the Post 7 School Board race, became the newest member of the Bibb County Board of Education.

Dr. Adams defeated Republican candidate Ben Hinson in the November election.

Dr. Adams was on the original faculty of Appling High School. Her son, Chador L. Adams, is a graduate of Mark Smith High School.

Dr. Adams is originally from North Carolina where she attended high school and college and received her degrees (a bachelor's and master's degree in English, and a doctorate in education).

One of Dr. Adams' dreams for Bibb County Schools is more parental involvement. She said, "I would like to see more parents getting involved in their child's education."

Board president retires in December

Bibb County Schools said goodbye in December to a trusted leader when Mr. William S. Hutchings retired from the Board of Education after 17 years of service.

Mr. Hutchings, father of seven children (all of whom graduated from Northeast), was originally appointed to the board in 1969 by then Mayor Ronnie Thompson. At that time, the only other black member on the self-perpetuating board was Dr. D. T. Watson.

When the board became an elected body in 1974, Mr. Hutchings was elected to a countywide seat in the first of what would be the maximum three terms. He served as president in his final term.

His leadership was characterized by an intense desire to provide the very best for every child in the county and by an amazing ability to accomplish remarkable things. A quiet and thoughtful man by nature, Mr. Hutchings was a valuable friend to Bibb County education.

Southwest High to be split in half

The Board of Education approved a plan to create a fourth county high school by splitting the 3000+ Southwest student body.

The plan specified that the new Southeast High School would be housed (after renovation) in the building currently known as Ballard B Middle School, and that it would be scheduled to open in the fall of 1988-89. During that first year, only students in grades 9-11 in the new district would attend Southeast; seniors would continue to attend Southwest. Despite the lack of a senior class, the school will provide a full curriculum and offer all interscholastic sports in its first year.

The board later announced that Ms. Anne Hadarits would be the complex principal. Faculty members from Southwest will be given the opportunity to request transfers to the new school.

Fifth high school possible

Following a statement by the Greater Macon Chamber of Commerce of their support for an additional high school in rapidly-growing northwest Bibb County, the Bibb County Board of Education voted to include the option in a five-year feasibility study.

While the idea obviously appealed to some board members, others indicated reluctance. The local leadership of the NAACP voiced concern that the action would be discriminatory and favor a specific group.

The discussion was expected to continue when the feasibility study was completed.

PAPERWORK IS A BIG PART of being the complex principal. Dr. G. Milton Dunaway was reinstated to the top administrative post at Northeast in late spring.

CREATING A SYSTEM FOR MANAGING "TARDIES" was one of the duties of the Lasseter administrators. Ms. Lucile Hunter, assistant principal, rolls off a pass from the printer while Ms. Eleanor Taylor, administrative intern, enters data on the next student.

ONE OF THE FIRST GROUP of administrative assistants in a special countywide program, Ms. Eleanor Taylor came to Northeast from Southwest.

KEEPING UP WITH PROFESSIONAL LIT-ERATURE helps an administrator find new ideas and strategies. Mr. Raymond Hughes, assistant principal for the Mark Smith building, catches up on his reading.

MANAGING THE FACULTIES IN THREE BUILDINGS takes a good administrator. Mrs. L. W. Wimberly, Lasseter building principal, fulfilled that additional responsibility for most of the school year.

Northeast Administration

GREETING VISITORS TO THE SCHOOL is one of the pleasant tasks of being an administrator for Mr. William Grant, vocational supervisor.

A new way of looking at things

Administrative changes, countywide pilot programs, new schoolwide programs

Changes in administrative staff, participation in a countywide pilot program, and creation of several at school made the school year distinctive.

Mrs. Wimberly, acting complex principal until spring

Mrs. L. W. Wimberly, Lasseter building principal, began the year as acting complex principal due to the absence of Dr. G. Milton Dunaway. Dr. Dunaway, who was removed as principal the year before in an eligibility fracas, was pursuing appeals to that decision.

Mr. Raymond Hughes, assistant principal for the Smith building, became acting principal for that building, pending the final decision concerning Dr. Dunaway's case.

When Dr. Dunaway finally won the case, he resumed his title as the Northeast complex principal, and all other administrators went back to their original positions.

Ms. Taylor member of pilot program

Ms. Eleanor Taylor, administrative intern assigned to the Lasseter building, was a sort of split personality. She spent half her day at Northeast as an administrative intern, then hurried across town to Southwest where she taught tenth grade English classes for half a day.

Ms. Taylor was a member of the pilot program designed to train teachers in administrative skills to create a pool of qualified personnel to be available when administrative vacancies occur.

A teacher of 15 years experience, Ms. Taylor said, "I wouldn't change anything about Northeast. The teachers and students are good, and they respond. That pleases me. I do wish everyone would wear school colors on game days."

When not at school, Ms. Taylor spends her time reading, snow skiing, and exercising.

Student tutorial program begins

Based on the knowledge that students sometimes learn better from other students, Mrs. Wimberly initiated the Success Express tutorial system.

Each academic department was instructed to organize a peer tutoring framework in which the more able students in each class were given the opportunity to work with classmates who were having difficulty. Student peers were supposed to work with their partners during classtime and any other time they could get together, such as before school, at lunch, or after school.

Parents pick up report cards

At the end of winter quarter, Northeast experimented with a new system of distributing report cards.

Parents were requested to come to the school, pick up the report card from the supervision teacher, and talk with the subject matter teachers. Mrs. Wimberly even arranged for school buses to ride regular routes and pick up parents who had no transportation.

Parents of nearly two thirds of the student body complied with the request on the specified night. Still more parents who were unable to come that night filtered in gradually over the next few days.

Student apprehension about parents and teachers getting together generally proved unfounded. The administration and faculty were pleased by the response and planned to include the system in the future.

Pins, t-shirts with pride slogans catch on in a big way

If anyone ever doubted that the faculty and staff were happy at Northeast or that they were proud of the student body's accomplishments, those doubts were dispelled with flair this year.

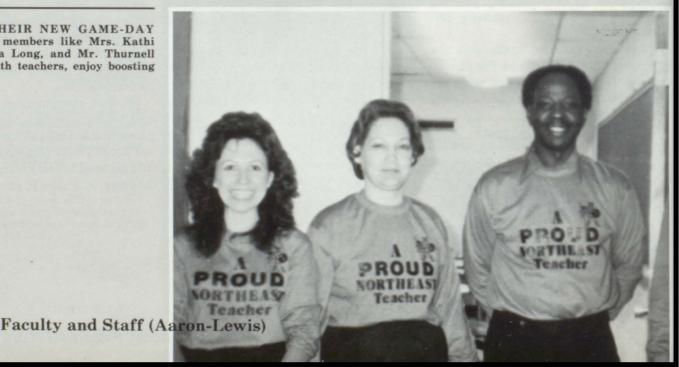

It all started with a little spirit button sale by the Spirit Club. The button read. "I'm a teacher at Northeast and proud of

NE confused by faculty changes

Eight personnel are new; three more come from middle school; four swap jobs

If returning students seemed confused by the faculty roster at the beginning of the school year, there was good reason.

There were, as always, a few new faces. In addition, some new faculty members were not really new at all; one was returning to Northeast after being assigned to another school in the meantime; two others had simply come up from the middle school with this year's ninth graders. Most confusing of all, four familiar faces were in unfamiliar places, due mostly to the loss of some vocational courses.

Teachers brand new to Northeast included Mr. Gregory Williams, Ms. Tonia Schofield, Mrs. Dawn Garand, Mrs. Diane Dempsey, Mr. Samuel Antwi, Mrs. Georgann Reaves, and Mr. Samuel Rountree.

Mr. Williams taught industrial arts. He said, "What surprises me is how well students act and how nice this school is." Mr. Williams had been teaching for four years and came to Northeast from Rebecca Comer Middle School. His hobbies were sports, reading, and woodworking.

Ms. Schofield taught pre-technical industrial arts. A graduate of Tuskegee Institute, Ms. Schofield had taught one year. Her hobbies were painting, traveling, and sports.

Mrs. Garand came to Northeast as a first-year teacher. Last year she was a student teacher at Central. She completed her college work at Mercer University. She said, "I am impressed that everyone is so well behaved." Her hobbies were singing, taking care of children, and reading.

Mrs. Dempsey, who came from Barden Elementary School, taught special education. This was her third year in Bibb County. "I like Northeast very much. Its students and teachers are working hard to make it an even better school. What surprises me is how well everyone gets along together." she said. Mrs. Demspey's hobbies were reading, golf, and sports.

Mr. Antwi was the new transportation class teacher. Formerly a teacher in the Bahamas, Mr. Antwi had fourteen years of experience and a degree from South London Technical College. His hobbies were football, soccer, and reading. Mr. Antwi said that the thing that most surprised him was how clean the school was.

With 19 years of experience at schools in Georgia and Mississippi, including Southwest and most recently Stratford Academy, Mrs. Reaves enjoyed reading, needlework and square dancing. She said, "I think I will like teaching at Northeast. The students and teachers have been very friendly and helpful during my first few days. Most of my students are cooperative."

"I am very proud to be a member of the faculty," said Mr. Rountree, a science teacher who had taught previously at Douglas High in Macon County and Rumble Junior High in Houston County. His hobbies included hunting, fishing, and other sports.

A staff member new to Northeast was Mrs. Fae Montsdeoca, the complex secretary. Her hobbies were children, singing, and church activities. She said, "We have a bunch of crazy kids here. I would like to change some student activities, and I wish I had a paddle of my own."

Returning to Northeast was Mrs. Berdia Felder, a counselor. She said, "Now that I'm back, it's great to be here, because it's like a home to me. There is only thing I would like to change: I would like to wave a magic wand that would allow every student to understand each sequence. I like Northeast because we have the prettiest campus in Macon. The teachers and students and administration are warm and sensitive." Mrs. Felder was assigned to the Appling Middle School last year.

Also moving to the senior high campus from the middle school were two math teachers, Mr. Dan Jolley and Mrs. Kathi Tyson.

Mr. Jolley said, "Northeast is the best school in Bibb County because of the student body, but we need more school spirit." Mr. Jolley, who had taught for 19 years, enjoyed fishing, jazz, and reading.

Mrs. Tyson said, "I feel like I've been a part of Northeast for many years because the Spirit Club has worked closely with Appling. I really thought that it would not be that much of a change for me coming from Appling, but I forgot that the students that I had previously would grow up so much. It has been interesting to see what kind of 'young adults' those 'children' I taught had become." Mrs. Tyson, who had taught nine years, enjoyed reading and tennis.

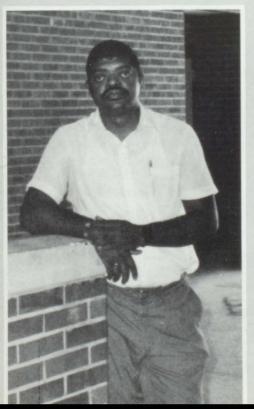

Familiar faces in new places included Mrs. Gloria Aaron, Ms. Marilyn Sikes, Mrs. Gwendolyn Crafter, and Mrs. Bernice Williams. Mrs. Aaron, a band parent who had substituted often, now served as an aide in the special education classes. Ms. Sikes, who had taught health and physical education, was now teaching science. Mrs. Crafter, who last year had been teaching food service, was now the CVAE coordinator. Mrs. Williams moved back to home economics from child care.

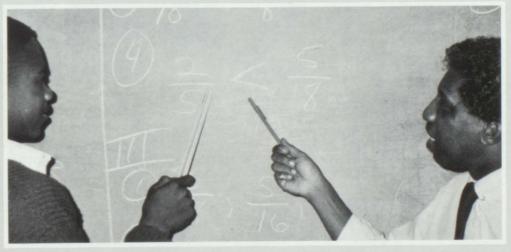

WORKING WITH STUDENTS AT THEIR DESKS, Mr. Samuel Rountree helps junior Craig Jones grasp an important science concept.

RECORDING GRADES IN THE GRADEBOOK, Mr. Samuel Antwi considers the results of his latest quiz in transportation.

LUNCH DUTY ASSIGNMENTS are tedious, but necessary supervisory duties for teachers. Mr. Greg Williams is stationed behind the vocational building.

Not just a matter of knowledge

Teachers, students agree that personality, methods are also important

What, exactly, is a good teacher? Is it just knowing more about the subject than the students in the class? Or is there more to it than that?

While every teacher who responded to the "good teaching" survey did indeed list subject matter knowledge as one of five most important characteristics, it wasn't always listed first.

Other characteristics listed by these teachers included factors relating to presentation style and personality traits, but nearly all of them also said that, above all else, teachers really want to teach.

Mr. Thurnell Johnson, math teacher, listed command of the English language, a positive attitude, a love for people, and a big sense of humor in addition to knowledge of the subject as essential qualities of a good teacher.

Mrs. Mary Alice Newberry, pre-tech instructor, included fairness, respect, concern, and love.

Competence, tolerance, compassion, fairness, and a sense of humor are the most important qualities in good teaching to Mr. Riley Brown, Spanish teacher.

Mrs. Yvonne Gee, social studies teacher, said that the characteristics she thought essential included caring about children, understanding, creativity, and never giving up.

To really like young people and be unprejudiced; to believe in the potential of each student; to be able to laugh at yourself; and to be faithful, present, and punctual — these were the other major factors important to Mrs. Mary Landrum, art teacher.

Students who responded to the survey also indicated that knowledge of the subject was important to them, but they thought of a good teacher as a person, not just a dispenser of knowledge.

Patience with students who are having trouble understanding and with those who are difficult to control seemed important to a number of students.

Junior Gary McCloud added understanding, considerate, and thoughtful. Monica Sampson, a sophomore, stressed the importance of being interested in students, maintaining a friendly environment for students.

Good teachers listed by the students in the survey included Mr. Leonard Searcy, Coach Walter Johnson, Mrs. Joyce Robinson, Coach Lamarr Sarter, Ms. Rita Long, Mrs. Kathleen Wheeler, Mrs. Maitland Hudson, Ms. Pam Brown, Mrs. Judy Fultz, Mrs. Juanita Floyd, Mrs. Gwendolyn Booker, Mrs. Gail Lewis, Mrs. Claudia Hutchings, Mrs. Carole Ford, Mrs. Kathi Tyson, Mr. Lewis Wright, Coach Fred Persley, Mrs. Tempest Turner, and Mrs. Joyce Simonton (a former Northeast teacher who substitutes often).

Just some pesky bad habits:

Nearly everyone has what he considers a bad habit.

Occasionally, the habit is internal in nature. Sophomore Stacy Battle said. "My worst habit is letting people get on my nerves. This is a problem because it usually ends up in a fight."

Most of the time the habit is external and irritates others, like drumming fingers on the desk. Sophomore DeLanda Adams said, "Overeating is my worst habit. I have been doing this since I could feed myself." Since it does not bother her, she has not really tried to Freshman Carla Annis has been biting her nails since fifth grade. She said, "I don't know why I started but I can't seem to stop. I have told some good friends to hit my hand if I put it in my mouth." Freshman Van Bieu Woodley says he also has a problem with biting his fingernails.

Freshman Nicole Cook said, "I have been popping gum since I can remember. It does not bother me, and the opinion of others is of no concern."

TALKING WITH HER HANDS, freshman Kathy Clance tells her friend, Tammy Baker, also a freshman, the latest news.

Hairdos make fashion statement

Fades, curls, waves, tails, and other styles are ways to express individuality

Fashion is not only a matter of clothes; hairstyles are just as important.

Here at Northeast, whether one's choice is "the fade," "curls," "tails," or "waves," getting a new hairstyle is the latest craze.

Junior Gary McCloud described his hairstyle as "a semi-fade where there is nothing on the sides and hair on the top."

Junior Mychal Mills said, "My hairstyle is known as a high right, which is high on one side and low on the other."

While sophomore Candida Finney had a different outlook on her hairstyle, she described it as being "an outrageous jeri-curl." Chernise Hoges, a sophomore, called her style a "mushroom." There are several reasons why people choose their hairstyles.

Sophomore Cynthia M. Brown said, "I chose my hairstyle because it was different."

Junior Arenella Flagg said, "My sister chose my hairstyle for me. She keeps it up for me because she is a beautician."

Most students weren't planning an immediate change in their hairstyle since they hadn't had their current style very long. A few others, however, were different.

Junior Neil Adams said, "I have had my current style for two years."

Johnny Sapp, a junior, said, "I have had my hairstyle for a lifetime!"

SOPHOMORE JOANNA ROBINSON MODELS THE "TAIL" so popular with hairstyles of both races.

DEMONSTRATING A VARIETY OF HAIRSTYLES are Kara Hill, Ronald Green, Chanda Gordon, William Young, Tanya Brown, Reggie Jones, Lynn Veal, and Leonard Pitts.

SENIOR CHARLENE SMITH SHOWS OFF the "sergeant stripes" hairstyle which is becoming incresingly popular.

Man, was I embarrassed!

Falling, public scoldings, loud arguments are tough to live down

Although nearly everyone has been terribly embarrassed at one time or another sometime in his life, many students are reluctant to share the event, and most of them would rather forget it. An informal poll uncovered a few brave souls who were willing to tell the world about the time they "could have just died."

One common embarrassing moment has to do with public speaking. LaDaphne Glasco, a freshman, said, "At school I was to say a poem, but when I got in front of the class, I forgot the whole thing."

Another trouble spot had to do with conversations that got out of hand. Freshman Eugene Mahone said he was embarrassed by a teacher who "loud-talked me about my schoolwork." Junior Chiquita McNair said she was embarrassed by an argument with her exboyfriend in the Mall. Freshman Paul Gibson had the same experience with a girlfriend.

Sometimes a person can be done in by not being aware of what's going on around him. Junior Aimee Spires was at the skating rink and was singing to the music that was playing. "Suddenly," she said, "this guy threw a quarter at me."

Dawn Parker, a freshman, said, "One day I was in Ms. Sikes' classroom and went to sleep. When I woke up, everybody was looking at me. They said I was snoring real loud." Dawn also talked about a bad day at the recreation center. She said, "I was swimming and I had on a strapless swimming suit. When I jumped in the water, it came down, and a lot of people saw me too. It was kind of funny — after it happened."

Tania Reynolds, a freshman, tells a story that sounds like the typical welcome to freshmen on a senior high campus. She said, "Someone put me in the trash can outside the gym. I got stuck. Then everyone came out of the gym and laughed at me, because the only thing you could see was my feet sticking up."

The most common embarrasing moment that turned up in the poll was falling down. Freshman Antonio Baldwin said, "I was riding my bike and tried to do a jump. I landed on my head, and everyone was laughing."

"One day I was racing with my father at Central City Park, and I saw a goodlooking guy," said Dawn Gillis, another freshman. "I fell, The good-looking guy laughed."

Australia Williams, a ninth grader, said, "I fell running into the classroom after the bell had sounded."

"I fell out of my desk," said freshman Lisa Williams.

The best "falling" stories, though, belong to two juniors. Junior Greg Blount said, "Once in the marathon I was looking behind me and ran into a van along the side. I had to get 14 stitches in my head, but I had to laugh."

Jimmie Duncan said, "I fell down the spiral steps at the Mall and almost knocked a lady into the fountain."

LOOKING FOR HER FAVORITE SONG, sophomore Aris Lucas thumbs through the disc section at the Record Bar.

TAKING A BREAK FROM WALKING THE MALL, sophomore John Simmons chows down with a good friend, senior Lorenzo Dunlap, in the food court.

Going their different ways:

Kids head in many directions to amuse themselves after school/on weekends.

On the weekdays when the bell rings ar 2:15 p.m., Northeast students explode from their classes. Where do they go? Destinations differ, but most students are headed for after-school responsibilities or to catch the bus.

Senior Katrina Bryant said, "I go to cheerleader practice after sixth period."

Sophomore Crystal Evans said, "I take the bus, go home, and do my homework."

"I go to work after school," said junior Brian Moore. At least one other place to go is represented by sophomore Ronald Blackmon, who said, "I hang on the street corner with the bums."

Not very exciting?

On the weekends it is a different story. Students jump into their cars and conquer the Mall, the bowling alley, and practically every food joint in town.

Sophomore John P. Dennis said, "I go to the games, and I'm usually with my friend Polo and crowds of people."

Angel Henry, a sophomore, said, "I hang out at Guido's or at my boyfriend's house."

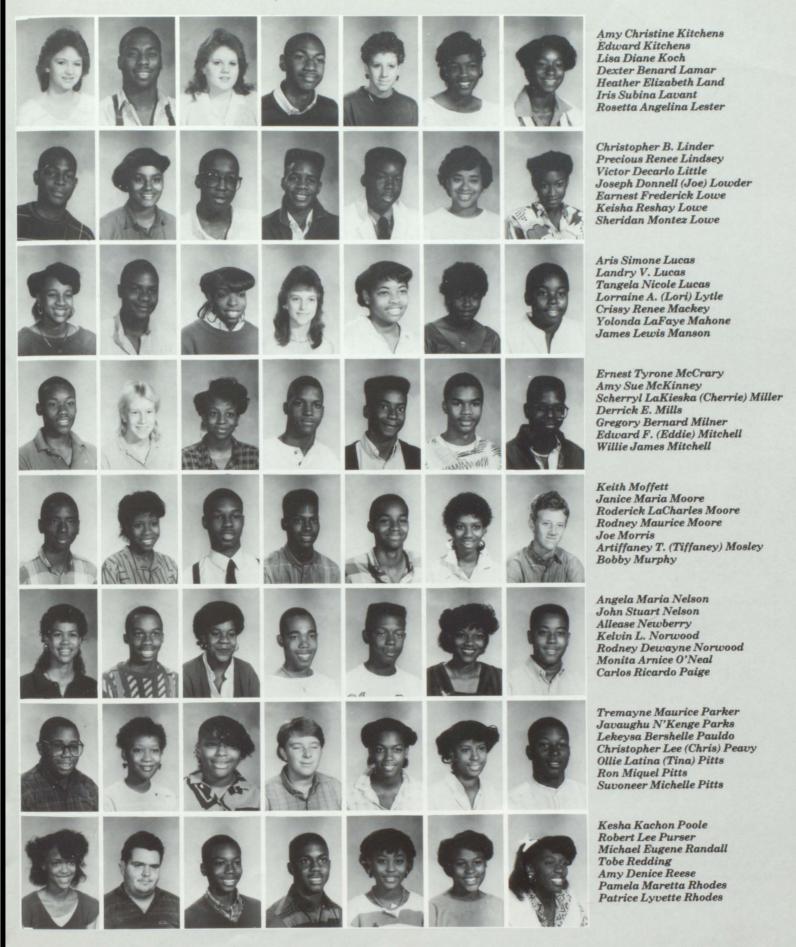

"I like to go to parties and go dancing on weekends," said senior Tony Hollimon. "I like to go to dances and the movies on the weekends," said sophomore Felicia Butts.

Senior April Basley struck a common chord with a number of other students when she said she would prefer to go anywhere "away from Macon."

Latonja Hill, a sophomore, said the best place to go on the weekends was one of the malls in Atlanta.

Sophomore Artiffaney Mosley longs to go "to Minneapolis, Minn. to see Prince, or if not that, to the mall in Canada, or L.A., or the mall in Minneapolis."

Non-seniors face money woes:

School pictures, club dues and jerseys lead to prom expenses and senior rings

Seniors weren't the only ones who had to fork over money for expenses this year. The underclassmen were swamped with their own problems. Before students had been in school very long, they were faced with worrying about paying for school pictures, club dues and jerseys, and yearbook deposits.

Freshman JaTonya Riley said, "It has been expensive for me, but thanks to my parents I got through it. I'm not old enough to work yet, so they helped me out."

Junior Art Wright said, "You bet it's been expensive! I've had every kind of expense there is. If I didn't have a job, I'd be in big trouble."

Freshman Nickey Zellner said, "I'm not old enough to really work so I do odd jobs. It's not steady work, but I get a little money."

Another junior, Butch Koch, said,

"My expenses are everywhere. I've got school expenses plus a truck payment and insurance to worry about. My job is very important to me."

Of the three underclassmen years, the junior year, of course, is the worst. Juniors finance the junior-senior prom with $20 prom dues, and order senior rings, the least expensive of which starts at about $150. Unfortunately, the junior year is only a taste of things to come.

JUNIOR HENRY PAYNE HAS A TOYOTA that has been fitted with custom pedals to enable him to drive.

Getting 'wheels:'

Having a car seems more necessity than luxury

A variety of cars and trucks filled the student parking lot this year — some old, some new; some sporty, and some economical. While most of the students have worked very hard to afford their cars, a few were lucky because parents helped them or bought them a car to drive.

The primary reason to have a car, of course, is to have more convenient and comfortable transportation. Junior Felicia Tufts says, "Driving is an advantage because you don't have to get up so early to catch the bus on rainy days."

The next most important reason to own a car is independence. Senior Steve Sims said, "Driving your own car makes you less dependent on your parents and friends." Some teenagers find additional uses for their cars. Junior William Wallace, better known as "Porky," likes to take his souped-up Volkswagon "mud bogging." Senior Kim Jarrell likes to cruise around town on the weekends in her sporty Fiero.

Then there is the old argument between Ford and Chevrolet owners. Geary Pinnell, a junior, says, "There are too many Fords in the parking lot and not enough Chevys."

However, according to Debbie Vickers, a junior, there's more to a car than just four wheels that take you where you want to go. She says, "A car isn't a car unless it has a jam system in it."

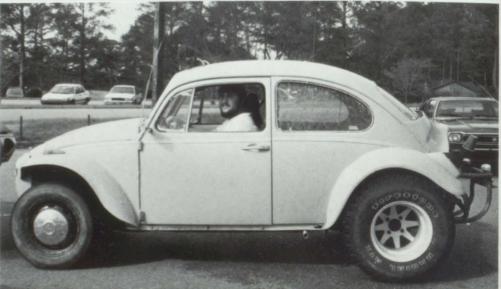

WILLIAM "PORKY" WALLACE WAITS PATIENTLY IN LINE in his mud buggy to leave the parking lot after school.

BUTCH KOCH, WHO WOULD RATHER WORK ON HIS TRUCK THAN EAT, enjoys a Coke as he waits for his younger sister Lisa to come out of the building.

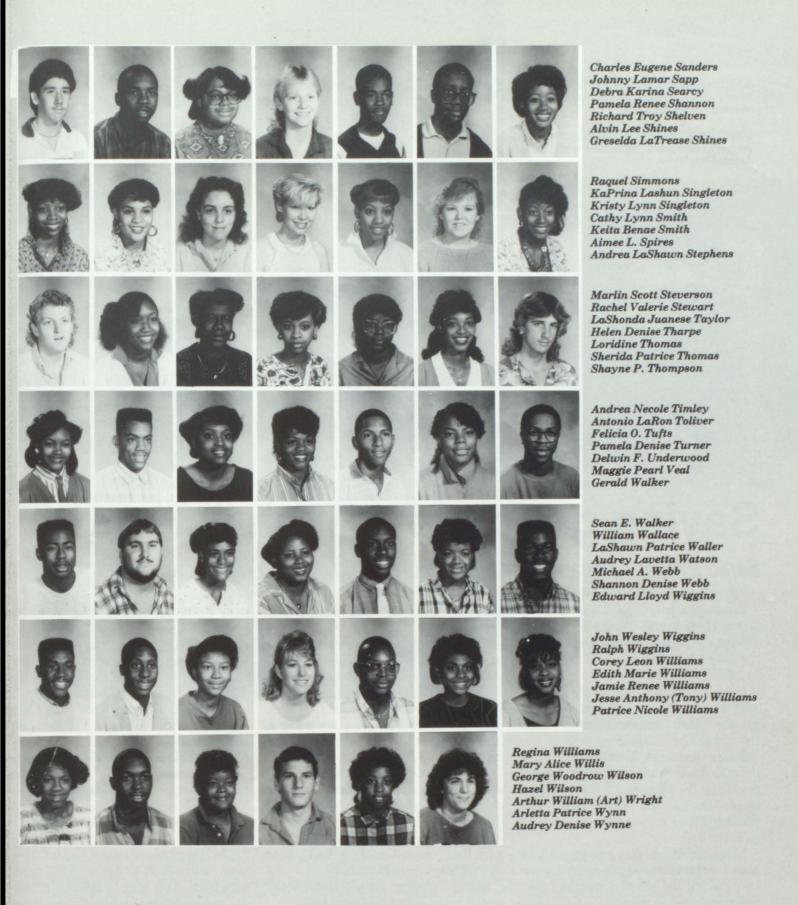

BEHIND THE WHEEL OF HER FIERO, senior Kim Jarrell heads off campus for her weekend of cruising town with friends.

Juniors (Cars)

REMEMBERING THE GOOD TIMES, Mr. Fred Persley, science teacher, says goodbye to senior Mark Cook.

SIGNING MEMORY BOOKS IS FUN, as senior Tracey Eason discovers with junior Aaron Darrisaw.

Saying goodbye to high school:

Seniors reflect on past, anticipate future as graduation ceremony nears

Once again it is time for yet another senior class to say goodbye. No more lockers, old ragged books, insistent bells, running for lunch, and familiar hallways.

Ready or not, it's time for the Class of 1987 to go out into the real world to assume adult responsibilities. That thought can be a little scary.

Senior Katranka Huston said, "The thing that scares me most about leaving Northeast is whether I'll have a good career that I will enjoy doing and whether I'll be successful in whatever I go out to do."

Mona Tyler, another senior, said, "I hope I will find a good job, and I wonder how old I'll be before I own my own business."

Senior Tracey Eason has something else on her mind. She said, "I'm worried about meeting new people and knowing which ones to trust and which not to trust."

Other seniors are worried about being on their own. Audrey Hill said, "I'm really worried about getting out there on my own and depending on myself."

Lorenzo Anderson, another senior, said, "I'm scared, knowing I'm going to have to accept the responsibility of being on my own."

Although seniors seem to be looking ahead with some uncertainty, they are also looking back with fondness at their time at Northeast.

Kenneth Sanders said, "The thing I'll miss the most is the Mark Smith food and the laughter of the kids."

Senior Jo Anne Caines said, "I will certainly miss all of my teachers."

Al Scott, another senior, said, "I'll miss all of the good times that accompany high school life. During the 2-1/years that I've been in Macon, I've ac quired some very good friends, and not we will have to go our separate ways. But the one I'll miss the most is m girlfriend, Cynthia M. Brown."

There are, of course, a few things the the seniors will not miss. For example senior Basil Freeman said, "The thin I'll miss the least is detention."

"Final exams — I won't miss them a all," said senior Octavia Clowers.

Senior Merri Jo Morgan said, "I wi miss the work that these teachers love t give us."

The members of the Class of 198 seem determined to avoid losing touc with each other and Northeast. If the are successful, memories of their time together will come rushing back as they happened only yesterday.

Choosing a college is difficult:

Cost, majors available, location, size are four factors to be considered

A number of seniors are serious about continuing their education. Of the 55 seniors responding to an informal survey, roughly 84 percent plan to attend a four-year college, while nine percent are opting for a junior college and the remaining seven percent have selected a vocational-technical school.

College-bound seniors agreed concerning the major factors they considered in selecting a specific school. The overwhelming majority said that cost and majors available were the top two factors. The location and size of the school, while important to many of those responding, rated third and fourth, respectively. Extracurricular opportunities rated a distant fifth.

Senior Audrey Harris, for example, plans to attend Georgia College in Milledgeville. She said, "It has an excellent nursing program, and it's close to home."

Senior Windy Jenkins plans to attend the University of Georgia where she will major in journalism. She said she chose Georgia "because it has a good English department, is economically affordable, and is not too far away from home."

In addition to the general trends, there were some personal reasons for the specific selections. Alvin Harmon, a senior, said, "I'm going to Morehouse College in Atlanta. It appeals to me the most. A junior college or a technical school really wouldn't give me the same feelings of college life."

Senior Geraldine McGirt plans to attend Georgia College because it seemed to be a "calm and peaceful environment in which to learn and study."

Senior Sabrina Wright chose her school because it is simply a family tradition.

In all cases, however, there is general agreement with senior Walter Hoskins, who said, "Choosing a college is a giant step in life."

SENIORS TAWANA GRAY AND STEPHANIE TURNER talk financing strategies with a representative from the Educational Talent Search agency.

COLLEGE ADMISSIONS OFFICIALS come to campus often during the school year. LeArnecia Epps and Angela Brown examine brochures and talk with someone from the University of Georgia.

There's good news, bad news

Senioritis, senior pranks are fun, but final year of high school is expensive

To most seniors, their final year follows the old cliche of good news and bad news. Enjoying senioritis and pulling senior pranks fall into the category of "good" news, while the cost of the senior year definitely belongs in the "bad" news column.

"I honestly believe that seniors should get first choice at everything because we have definitely earned the privilege," said Senior Class President Jacqueline Hill.

Senior Jacquita White said, "Senioritis is the feeling that all seniors have that they should be treated special."

Senior April Basley said, "It feels great to be a senior, because I feel I have arrived at just one of the many milestones I must endure."

Senior Alvin Harmon said, "I believe that many seniors, if not all of them, suffer from senioritis. I am enjoying every minute of it."

According to an informal poll of seniors, senior mischief has been mild this year. The chief motive has been to have fun, not to be mean or get back at someone. In fact, most pranks have been played on other seniors or at least underclassmen who are good friends.

Typical pranks have included loose tops on the salt shakers at lunch, and shoving students into the wrong class. "My best prank was talking out loud and getting someone assigned detention for me, but then I howled and she (the teacher) caught me, too," said senior Benita Parker.

The senior year is not all fun and games. Along with the very real pressure of passing the necessary courses to graduate (and doing well in them, if planning to go to college), seniors find that the final year of school is quite expensive. From an informal poll, seniors estimated that the average senior will spend close to $200, but many will spend far more than that.

First, there is the excitement of taking senior pictures, heightened this year by the move to Southeastern Portraits, Inc. For seniors trying to save money for ficial photographers for Central and Southwest for years. The least expensive portrait package is around $40.

Then the yearbook staff requests $10 more to defray the cost of printing the senior section in color, which is not included in the $24 it costs to buy the yearbook itself.

Because they are proud of being seniors, they then want to pay $14 or more for the official senior jersey.

For those who take the SAT to qualify for college, there's another $11.50, and most of them take it twice!

Most seniors expect to spend a small fortune on the prom for formal wear, flowers, and dinner. Even more seniors expect to spend about $40 or so on invitations, senior cards, and a memory book. Seniors are usually surprised to find they must pay $13 for the cap and gown. A senior who hopes to go on the senior trip better have about $200 more squirreled away, just for that!

For seniors trying to save money for college, the senior year is a constant drain on those plans. Many wish they were independently wealthy.

Senior Class on top . . . at last!

Reaching the twelfth grade means they're 'in charge;' they 'rule'

After completing eleven years of school, the average high school student goes through a change, a sort of metamorphosis.

As rising seniors emerge from the end of their junior year, there is a new confidence. Initially sure of themselves, they enjoy a year of lording it over everyone else. They play endless pranks and suffer from senioritis, but as the year moves along one sobering thought intrudes on all that fun. Soon — very soon, indeed — they will be face to face with the real world.

As graduation gets closer and closer, the mood becomes more serious and reflective as students ponder their readiness to be completely responsible for their own actions and their own lives.

Senior Jacquita White explains what it means to be a senior. She said, "We rule! It also means that we as seniors should have a little more privileges than the underclassmen."

"It means a lot to me," said senior Trenisicia Stephens. "It means I have accomplished something. I'm proud of myself, but I also realize it's only the beginning."

All through those first eleven years, members of the Class of 1987 have been picked on and laughed at by older classes which preceded them. Since they survived that gauntlet, the seniors feel that they deserve whatever senior privileges might come their way. Because they endured what previous classes dished out, it's only fair that they now get to play the fun side of the game.

"I know that the underclassmen get jealous and think we're a bunch of 'stuck-up' young adults, but they have to look at it from our point of view," said senior Tony Ridgeway. "We were underclassmen just like they are now, and we got picked on and pushed around a lot. When we became seniors, it released a lot of anxiety and hostility. The underclassmen are the only ones we can take it out on. So you shouldn't get offended, underclassmen; it's only a tradition that's been passed down from graduating class to graduating class. Don't worry! You'll get your chance to be seniors, but for now, the Class of '87 is on top at last!"

555 STUDY HARDER TO PASS

Strong protest from parents and students led the Bibb County Board of Education to reject a grade scale proposed by the school superintendent and his staff. The tougher grade scale had only been in force for about nine weeks.

The change came about when the state mandated last spring that a state passing score be set at 70. Originally, Dr. Thomas Hagler had proposed that the Bibb County grading scale be distributed as follows: A=94-100; B=85-93; C=75-84; D=70-74; F=69 and under.

Parents and students who objected to the new scale did so for a variety of reasons. Some felt that it was unfair to the seniors to change the scale on them just when they were competing to be admitted into college. Others felt that the cut-off score to make an A was simply too high.

"I feel that if they want to change the grade system, they should do it to the incoming ninth graders, not the students who are ready to graduate," said senior Merri Jo Morgan.

"I didn't like the proposed grade scale because if you took a test with ten questions and missed just one, that's a B instead of having a chance to make an A," said sophomore Willie Mitchell.

Some students thought that the higher passing mark was a good idea. "People should attempt to do more than just get by. This way students strive more for their grades and take more pride in their work," said freshman Shannon Stanton.

In any case, the school board voted to reject the proposed scale. In a later meeting, the board accepted a revised scale which returned the top three grades to 1985-86 point values (A=90-100; B=80-89; C=70-79), and simply dropped the D altogether.

BOARD 'SUCCESS EXPRESS'

Students helping students. That was the idea behind Success Express, a peer tutoring project initiated in October by Mrs. L. W. Wimberly, Northeast principal.

Each academic department was instructed to organize a student tutoring system in which the more able students in each class were given the opportunity to work with classmates who were having difficulty. Student peers were supposed to work with their partners during classtime and any other times they could get together, such as before school, at lunch, or after school.

The program seemed especially successful in the math department.

Mrs. Gwynneth Lamon, math teacher, found the program most useful in her consumer math and pre-algebra classes. "It gives slower students an assist. Students talk the same language. The program has even helped in several cases in behavior patterns. Students really do want to learn," said Mrs. Lamon.

"Students who participate are serious about improving their work. Being able to to identify problem areas and correct them results in a return of self-confidence to these students," said Mrs. Kathi Tyson, another math teacher. Mrs. Tyson's Algebra I tutorials were after school.

Lunch and after school were the times selected by Mr. Thurnell Johnson's math tutors. What evidence was there of the effectiveness of the program? "Grades have improved," said Mr. Johnson.

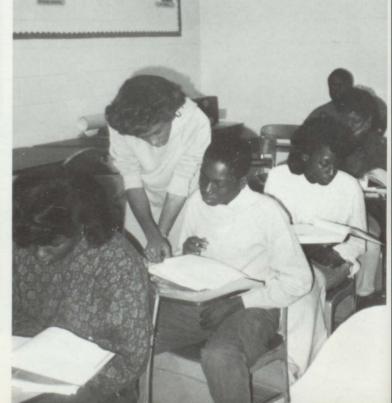

An extra benefit to the tutoring was the effect on the student tutors. Having to know the subject well enough to help a classmate "gives the students a chance to practice and enhance their own skills while helping others," said Mr. Johnson.

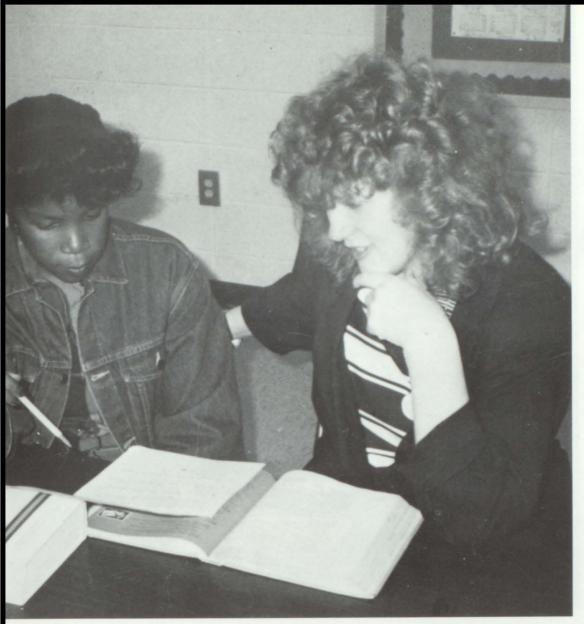

WITH A LITTLE AFTER-SCHOOL HELP from Mrs. Kathi Tyson, her teacher, freshman Cristel Bell begins to catch on to a new mathematics concept.

Ninth Grade Writing Project

Practicing 'the writing process' to prepare for writing sample helps ninth grade students

POLISH WRITING SKILLS

In an effort to prepare current ninth graders for the new writing sample on next year's version of the Georgia Basic Skills Test (GBST), freshman English classes in all three Bibb County High Schools participated in a special program with Dr. Warren Combs.

Dr. Combs, who is a writing consultant from the University of Georgia, said that the state has predicted that as many as 30 percent of the state's sophomores will fail the writing sample on the GBST in the fall, 1987, test.

However, Dr. Combs is optimistic about Northeast students who will face the writing sample next year. He said, "With the work I'm doing here, the percentage does not have to be that high at Northeast. These students could be the first ones to pass the writing test added to the reading and math tests already required statewide for graduation."

Freshmen involved in the program called "Writing to Win" were those in classes taught by Mrs. LaMerle Loveland, Mrs. Sydney Chalfa, Mrs. Erma Stevens, Ms. Pam Brown, Mr. Reece Morrison, and Mrs. Juanita Floyd.

Mrs. Chalfa was very enthusiastic about the program.

"I now have a better idea of how to prepare students to write and how they can learn from each other's writing. Not only do the students understand the writing process better, but they seem to enjoy it more. Dr. Comb's procedures are easy to follow. They are very 'teachable' in that students see the logical steps involved."

A West Coast native, Dr. Combs was educated in Minnesota and has a doctorate in linguistics. He said, "I taught in Minnesota for four years and Georgia for seven more before I got to own my own company."

Required Health/PE classes teach game skills and conditioning, study health questions to

DEVELOP LIFETIME HABITS

Dismissing required Health/PE classes as non-academic — and therefore not important — is probably common among students, but, as might be expected, that view is not shared by the teaching staff.

According to the coaches, a PE class is not a period to goof off; it's a learning experience. The lessons learned are not only for the immediate future but for a healthy lifetime as well.

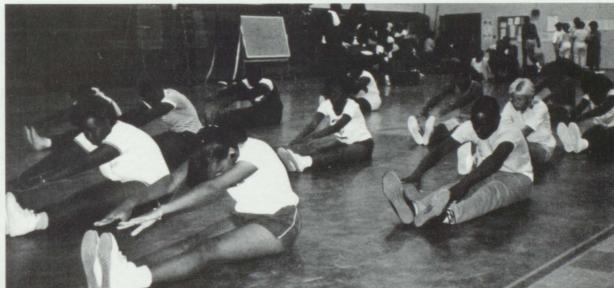

Students are taught to do warm-up and cool-down exercises before strenuous sports to prevent injury. Conditioning and fitness are high priorities. Specific safety tips for specific sports are also emphasized.

Learning the rules of the game for a variety of sports — basketball, volleyball, tennis, badminton, bowling, archery, and others — provides a background against which one can continue to participate in the activity as an adult or enjoy it as an knowledgeable spectator.

"The purpose of physical education is to help students achieve a certain level of physical fitness to be able to perform daily activities. A part of looking good is feeling good, and all of that is part of a healthy lifestyle," said Mrs. Clara Hollins, PE instructor.

Designed for school athletes, but accepting anyone interested, Advanced PE manages to

CHALLENGE THE 'JOCKS'

Advanced Physical Health Education. Sounds impressive, doesn't it? What is it? Advanced PE, plain and simple.

Offered for the last three years, Advanced PE is an elective originally designed for those students involved in interscholastic competition. Coach Alvin Copeland explained the reason for the class. "The Advanced Physical Health Education class, my sixth period, was intended to be a class for the school athletes. They could be together and do things they couldn't do in other classes, such as review game films, workout, aid injuries, and even see the doctor when necessary."

The theory hasn't worked perfectly, however. Because of other course requirements or schedule conflicts, all of the athletes are not in the class. In addition, almost half of the students in the class aren't involved in after-school athletics.

The aversion of the typical student to the required PE class is not shared by members of the Advanced PE class, known to the rest of the student body as "the sixth period jocks." Junior Ann Brooks said, "I like it better than regular PE."

Senior Rochelle Hicks said, "I feel that Advanced PE gives an athlete that extra edge over the other team's athletes as far as strength and stamina goes."

"Advanced PE conditions you and prepares you mentally for a sport," said senior Robert Moore.

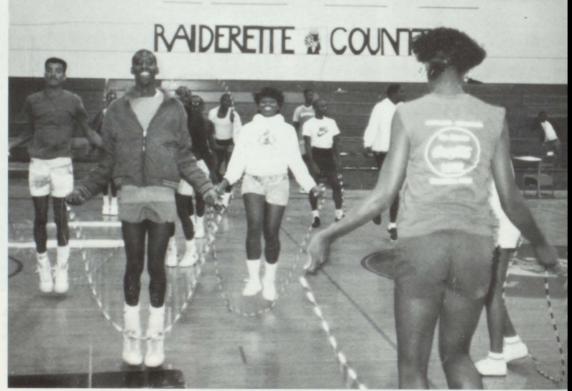

"Other schools have Advanced PE; there is no need for us to be different. It enhances physical education at Northeast, without taking away from other classes. This makes it easier for everyone — for us as coaches, the team members in the class, and the other teachers," said Coach Copeland.

Staying Eligibl

Facing tougher academic rules, athletes spend longer hours hitting the books to

STAY ELIGIBLE TO PLAY

A change in eligibilty requirements from the Georgia High School Association (GHSA) was greeted with mixed reviews. Teachers, coaches, and administrators were mostly in favor of the new requirement that an athlete must pass five classes out of six to remain eligible; the students, especially the athletes themselves, were less sure.

Coupled with the other decision coming out of Quality Basic Education (QBE) which mandated a state passing score of 70, a number of athletes were worried about the increased pressure.

Now, not only did athletes have to work harder to be sure to pass a fifth class, they also had to work harder to continue to pass the ones they had passed before.

Most teachers seemed to believe that the toughening measures had their roots in the "no pass, no play" ruling in Texas a year or two ago. Whether the new Georgia rulings were copycat moves inspired by the Texas decision, or whether they would have been part of the overall QBE reforms eventually, it really didn't matter. What mattered was that the rulings were in force, and the athletes had to deal with them.

Junior Kelvin McElroy, a football player, said, "The decision will help me to prepare for college. It should teach me how to improve my study habits."

"The new rule has really motivated me because I really want to play basketball and get a scholarship for college. This will make me strive harder for my dream," said sophomore Monita O'Neal.

Sophomore wrestler and baseball player Ronald Blackmon spoke for the athletes who were less pleased with the rulings. He said, "I don't think it's fair because most of the players were barely passing the required four classes last year. Since QBE and GHSA have changed the grading scale and the number of courses to pass, we may not have enough players to make a team."

Although a few students did find themselves ineligible, the athletic program survived.

Membership in honorary organizations is strictly

By personal invitation only

The National Honor Society is probably the best known of the three honorary organizations. Students are invited on the basis of their leadership, scholarship, character, and service. Required grade point averages are 4.00, seniors; 4.20 juniors; and 4.30 sophomores.

Windy Jenkins, a member, said, "The National Honor Society represents high achievement and hard work. It is something to strive for in your academic career."

New members of the honor society inducted during the assembly for American Education Week were seniors Barbara Billingslea and Joel Jenkins; juniors Danielle Allen, Ralph Redd, Marilyn Rhodes; and sophomores Charles Allen, Michael Braswell, Andrea Gordon, Stuart Nelson, and Monica Sampson.

Mu Alpha Theta invites students to join who have an overall average of B in three or more academic math courses and who are currently enrolled in an academic math course.

"Mu Alpha Theta was formed to engender keener interest in mathematics, to develop sound scholarship in the subject and promote enjoyment of mathematics among high school students," said Ms. Rita Long, club adviser.

Quill and Scroll International Honor Society for High School Journalists recognizes the special contributions of staff members on the school newspaper, magazine, and yearbook. Students who have made exceptional contributions to the student publications and who are in the upper third of their class are invited to join.

Extending classroom knowledge

In addition to the honorary organizations, other academic organizations provided students with academic talents outlets for enrichment or competition.

Spanish Club

Membership in the Spanish Club is open to students who are presently taking Spanish I or II, and to those who have already completed Spanish II.

According to the adviser, Mr. Riley Brown, the club attended a performance of "Los Bailes Espanoles de Jose Molinas" in Albany in October, learned about classical and Flamingo Spanish dances, and established a pen-pal network with students in Spanish-speaking countries.

Drama Club

The Drama Club is for student in the drama class and others who are interested. The club members presented a play for the Community Children's Theater, for other English classes, and competed in the one-act play contest in the literary meet at Macon Junior. Mrs. Sydney Chalfa, adviser, said, "In the future we hope to hold competitions here at Northeast."

Literary Team

The literary team is the core from which contestants are drawn for writing and speaking contests. Tracey Hawkins and Windy Jenkins served as co-chairmen for the current year. The literary team is sponsored by Mrs. Shirley Macklin.

Academic Bowl

The Academic Bowl team participated in the first Georgia Academic Decathlon in Athens where Joel Jenkins won first place in math and third place in both economics and English; and Vernon Brown, third place in personal interview. The team took fourth place in the Ft. Valley State College High School Quiz Bowl, and also competed in the Middle Georgia Academic Quiz Bowl and the Georgia Southwestern Academic Quiz Bowl.

Joel Jenkins was selected as a member of the All-County Quiz Bowl Team which competed in Jacksonville in April. Chaucey Hunt and Monica Sampson were invited as observers.

Mrs. Jeanetta Echols and Ms. Nova Bruss served as advisers.

Math Club

Math Club members sponsored the Math Olympics, the Math Honor Roll, and the Math Awards program at the end of the year. The adviser was Miss Rita Long.

Math Team

Joel Jenkins took first place in the Macon Junior College Math Olympics and tied for second at the fall Bibb County math meet. The team of Andre Bobo, Joel Jenkins, Walter Hoskins, and Ralph Redd tied for third place at the Macon Junior College Math Olympics.

"We are so proud of our team," said Mrs. Gwynneth Lamon, one club adviser. Mr. Thurnell Johnson is the other adviser. Other team members included Jacqueline Hill, Geraldine McGirt, Marilyn Rhodes, Danielle Allen, and Keshia Moore.

Producing top publications takes

Lots of hard work

If students who signed up for a publication were dreaming of a "free period," they quickly found out they were wrong. Then they found out that hard work paid off.

Salmagundi adviser, Mrs. Shirley Macklin, said, "It's very challenging. I am constantly faced with the challenge to foster creatuivity and the production of quality work among the students. Once you have achieved a number one magazine, you have to match you own former efforts."

Windy Jenkins, Salmagundi editor, said, "I enjoy it so much that I'm planning to continue right into college with it."

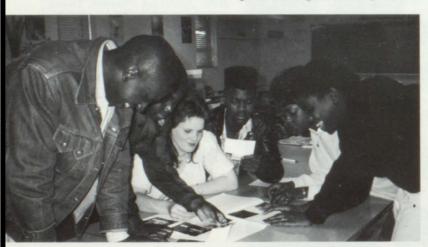

Golden Star editor, Al

Scott, said, "I expected it to be very demanding. It took a lot of hard work and a lot of know how."

Valhalla editor, Kim Mc-Dowell, said, "It takes a lot of work. When all the students don't help, it makes it a lot harder on those who are left to pick up the slack."

"We were satisfied with the critical evaluations of all three publications on state, regional, and national levels of competition," said Mrs. Carole Ford, adviser for the newspaper and the yearbook.

Put textbook knowledge into practice

Students in the vocational classes are encouraged to join the corresponding vocational club. Six separate clubs were active during this school year.

AIASA

AIASA sponsored a Fashion and Talent Show in March. Involved in the fashion show were Tabatha Newby, Sheresa Stubbs, Chiquita Williams, Tonya Davis, Crystal Wilson, Nicole Cook, Australia Williams, Iris Lavant, and Charles Stephens.

Sanita Harper won the singing competition; other singers were Tonya Davis, Saketha Parker, Ronald George, Charles Stubbs, Robert Brown, Eugene Green, and Linda Morgan.

Greg Collins and Anthony Blackmon won the dance competition; other dancers were Charles Stephens, Dexter Howard, Darrell Brown, Tobe Redding, Julius Mason, Chris Wright, and Todd Williams.

Gathering her members from the industrial arts classes, Ms. Tonia Schofield is the adviser.

DECA

DECA is the job-related club for the marketing classes taught by Mrs. Joyce Robinson.

Gina Fordham served as the Sixth District Vice-President of Georgia DECA. She said, "DECA gives students a chance to apply the skills and knowledge you learn in the classroom in a practical manner to your career and life goals."

Denise Wynn won her category at district competition; others competing were Kim Grey, Carla Fults, and Sharron Mathis.

FBLA

FBLA caters to students interested in clerical and executive business training offered in the vocational office training classes of Mrs. Linda Little. The biggest fundraiser this year was a citrus fruit sale.

Senior Angela Brown said, "FBLA is an interesting organization. It expands your ability toward a future in business."

FHA/HERO

FHA/HERO students, who come from the home economics classes of Mrs. Bernice Williams, filled the planters in the front of the vocational building.

The chapter celebrated FHA/HERO Week February 8-14. Club members attended church together, publicized their club, did some community service projects, and cooked a luncheon for family, friends, and teachers. In March, Rhonda Green ran for historian of District III.

VICA

VICA members come from the T and T program. Mr. J. C. Reeves is the adviser.

Travis Jackson won first place in graphics in the district competition.

VICA students are responsible for the trash cans around the campus and had a very successful after-school cold drink sale.

VOCA

VOCA student Sheila Blount won third place at region competition in occupational home ec; and Aquilla Daniels, fourth in public speaking. Others competing were Madeline Horne, miscellaneous; Tangela Lane, career manual; and Tonia Davis, spelling.

VOCA students come from the CVAE classes taught by Mrs. Gwendolyn Crafter.

SENIOR NATHANIEL SNEAD PERFORMS A SOLO at the American Education Week assembly.

THE RAIDER BAND TAKES THE FIELD at the end of summer camp to perform for parents and friends the routines they've been learning all week.

Working hard on instruments, marching, and pride, the Raider band is

Establishing a tradition of excellence

A new tradition of excellence — that's what the Raider band was putting together this year.

Instrumentally, there were big accomplishments. Two members of the band were selected to the district honor band — Carla Fults and Precious Lindsey, both on clarinets. In district solo and ensemble competition, Tanya Goolsby was ranked superior on flute and Conya Reeves, excellent on clarinet.

In fact, the entire band moved up a notch in concert competition at the Spring Music Festival. In 1985-86, the band received three excellents and a good on Level III. This year the band moved up to Level IV, a higher difficulty level, and received three goods and a fair.

The marching was receiving more recognition, too. Not only did the band march in the traditional Macon Christmas Parade, but they also made the short trip to Atlanta to take part in the prestigious Macy's-Egleston Christmas Parade.

According to parade officials, more than 100,000 spectators lined the mile-and-aquarter parade route last year, and a viewing audience of an additional 250,000 watched the live broadcast over WAGA TV-5.

Mr. Charles Ritter, band director, was obviously proud of his band's accomplishment. He said, "It was a great honor for the Raider Band to participate in the Macy's Parade. No band has ever been asked to participate in the event two years straight."

Drum major Jacquita White said, "Over 400 bands tried out for the Macy's Parade, but only 12 made it."

The Raider band also marched in the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Savannah, winning the Sinn Fein Award, being the first American band in the parade.

Of course, the band also marched in the Macon Cherry Blossom Parade.

The growing reputation of the Raider band is the result of lots of hard work. The band members learned three separate halftime shows during the summer band camp when they camped out in tents at Camp Benjamin Hawkins.

"As drum major," said Lin Tai Clark, "I have the responsibility of enforcing promptness to band practice and activities, taking my peers over band music and marching drills, doing a small amount of counseling, and elevating the prestige of the band and the school."

Band President Carla Fults said, "The students play a large part in planning and have proven their desire to have an outstanding band."

JUNIOR JECHELL LARY accompanies the chorus on the piano as they sing to residents of a nearby nursing home in the holiday season.

Chorus members go about their many performances

Once more with special feeling

Although the chorus performed as always for the school and the community, this year the singing was really from the heart, according to Chorus President Michael Glover.

"In past years, when I've sung during the Christmas holidays, I never felt as happy about doing it as I did this year, and the rest of the choral members had the amount of spirit behind them as well. Without Mrs. Floyd, all of our singing for the community and for our school would not be possible."

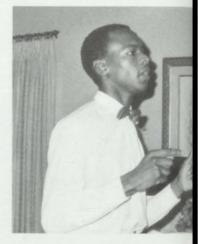

Beside the assembly at school, the chorus also performed in community churches' commemorations of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and the district choral festival.

Cynthia Brown, Rodregus Newton, Madeline Horne, Charity Cabiness, and Aquilla Daniels participated in the solo and ensemble competition at Baldwin County.

Mrs. Juanita Floyd, choral instructor, said, "They do much more than just sing: they have written and oral examinations, and they are graded on class participation."

With the amount of talent represented in choral members, there are bound to be some who will find ways to succeed musically in the future. Mrs. Floyd said, "Many of my students have the potential to go far in the entertainment business, particularly Michael Glover, Kenneth Sanders, Juandalynn Harris, and Delphia Boynton, just to name a few."

Michael Glover said, "As president of the chorus, I would like to say that I've enjoyed being in the chorus for three years. We've been through good times and bad times and have always been successful in the choral festivals. I hope that the chorus continues to be the best of all the rest."

Cadets get a headstart on armed forces training in

JROTC's leadership program

The Northeast Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps (JROTC) program is a strong elective program which develops leadership, confidence, patriotism, and civic responsibility in the students in the cadet corps.

Students study military history, weapons and tactics, drill, inspection, and ceremonies. They have physical fitness training which includes exercises and a confidence course. They also learn to shoot rifles, having a state-of-the-art rifle range in the JROTC wing. First aid is included as well.

Freshman Errine Lester said, "It is fun. I had a great time when we went to Mercer to rappell."

Treceda Cobbs, another freshman, said, "Some people told me it wouldn't be a good class. It isn't. It's a wonderful class!"

Cadets in JROTC have an opportunity to compete and represent Northeast, too. The color guard performs at football games and marches in parades. The saber arch detail provides a bit of flair for the homecoming ceremonies and the Military Ball. The rifle team and the two drill teams — the Red Rifles (boys) and the Valkyries (girls) — also compete against teams from other JROTC units.

THE JROTC BATTALION FORMS UP after the parade to hear Ms. Lucile Hunter, Lasseter assistant principal and speaker for the occasion.

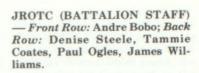

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JAMES LOWE, senior JROTC instructor, is animated in his discussion about military matters with these JROTC cadets.

"Too much city; too industrialized. I like the country."

Greg Blount Junior

"The community is not filled with enough activities for the teenagers to keep them out of trouble."

> DeLanda Adams Sophomore

"I think the City of Macon is a great city because we have great officers, mayors, and citizens."

> Stacey Baldwin Freshman

"It is a pretty, historic city. The people are very friendly and helpful. I am particularly impressed with the state and architecture of the historic buildings."

NORTHEAST ALUMNI MAKE MARKS

NORTHEAST HIGH SCHOOL . . Over the years these three words have meant a variety of things to the students who have walked her halls. To the first class in 1971, Northeast High School meant change and mixed emotions. It meant the by-product of a county-wide desegregation upheaval which, in part, brought "three great schools of old" - Mark Smith, H. S. Lasseter, and Peter G. Appling - into a melting pot called Northeast. To the class of 1975, Northeast High School meant building traditions and reflecting upon a new sense of identity as the first group of "pure Raiders." To the classes of the late 70's and early 80's, Northeast High School meant growth with the groundbreaking, construction, and eventual dedication of the administration/vocational facility which finally made for complete coeducation among classes, as well as building departmentalization. To the more recent graduating classes, Northeast High School has meant grade-level restructuring and an increased minority enrollment as neighborhood patterns and social trends constantly change.

However, sixteen years later and sixteen classes later the ideals of three grand old schools are still reflected in the high standards that Northeast so emphatically motivates. And despite misinformation and distorted public opinion during the past decade, Northeast students continue to prove themselves while in school and after graduation. Just as Smith, Lasseter, and Appling produced such outstanding graduates as Craig Hertwig, Jag Gholson, and Charles Wells; Valeria Murphey, Lydia Mitcham, and Fran Grant; Rodney Davis, Billy Randall, and Ben Johnston, Northeast always has, too. Furthermore, she still does. Graduates from the last several classes are studying at leading institutions - U.S.C., Morehouse, Spelman, Vanderbilt, Auburn, and Clemson, just to name a few. Others have undertaken exciting careers in the military or in the work force. Even some members of the 1987 senior class have already accepted offers to attend various colleges and military academies. Yes, each year Northeast successfully sends out another group of graduates who like their predecessors shall become valuable assets to cities and communities throughout the U.S. and abroad.

This page and the next several feature a few of Northeast's alumni from the classes of 1971 through 1981. This ten-year span was chosen since so many students from the classes after 1981 are still in school. It is important to realize, though that the persons included are merely a small sampling of the numerous outstanding citizens that Northeast has hosted. Also, the diversity reflected on these pages not only indicates the school's diversity over the years, but represents the many lifelong friendships - some with little or no regard for ethnic, social, and religious background - that have been fostered within the classrooms of Northeast High School.

EDUCATION — Clockwise from top right: Francile W. Abercrombie, '79, is a teacher at Barnett Shoals Elementary School in Athens. Miss Abercrombie attended Wesleyan College and received the bachelor's degree from Mercer Univ. In 1985 she was named a winner of the prestigious "Sallie Mae" award, sponsored by the Student Loan Marketing Assoc. of School Administrators. This award honors 100 exceptional first-year teachers throughout the U.S. nominated by local superintendents. Miss Abercrombie was featured in several education journals including Today's Education. The administrative assistant to the deputy superintendent of the Bibb schools is Joann Elkins Bass, '73. She formally worked with the assistant superintendent of secondary education. Mrs. Bass is active in the Bibb Assoc. of Educational Office Personnel and the Georgia Assoc. of Educational Office Personnel. Gwendolyn Ridley, '74, is on staff in the Professional Development Office of Harvard Univ., Cambridge, Mass. Miss Ridley received the B.A. degree from Univ. of South Florida and worked with Norrell Services in Macon for several years. She is now a candidate for the degree of master of education at Harvard's Graduate School of Business and Education. A YEAR'S WORTH OF CLUTTER IN A LOCKER is disposed of in seconds by junior Geary Pinnell.

ey, Larry, wait up!"
"Man, I thought this last week would never end!"

"I know what you mean . . . I've been studying my head off to get ready for finals, but, dog, if I didn't go blank when I looked at that test."

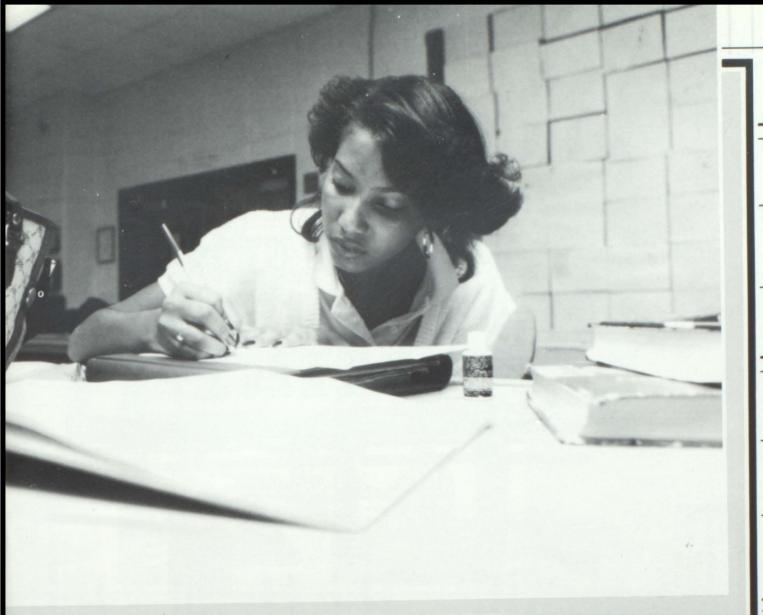

"Yeah. That happens. Say, you goin' to graduation?"

"Probably. There might be some parties in Shurlington later, too ... Just think — the next time we walk these halls, we'll be seniors."

"Sounds like heaven to me. Catch you later, buddy."

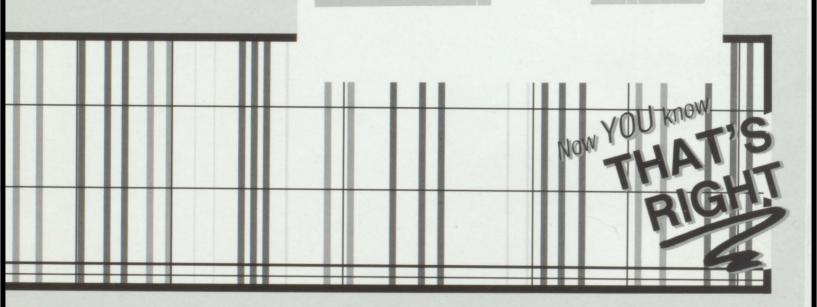

TURNING IN THOSE BIG, HEAVY TEXTBOOKS BRINGS SMILES to both Carlos Paige, a sophomore science student, and his teacher, Mrs. Gwendolyn Booker, science teacher.

GETTING IN SOME LAST-MINUTE STUDYING, freshman LuWanna Glover prepares for her final examinations.

A WARM GOODBYE HUG HELPS MAKE THE LAST DAY EASIER for these good friends, seniors Vickie Ragans and Juandalynn Harris.

SPRING SUPPLEMENT 1987

Tennis takes city championship; other teams were mediocre at best

It was a mediocre year for the spring sports teams.

Tennis

Led by freshman Rod Bailey, the tennis team claimed the city championship.

Bailey was named Singles Player of the Year. The best doubles pair was Andre Bobo and Juan Glover. Michael Hill was named rookie of the year; Ralph Redd took the service award.

Track

Led by senior David Lucas, who was named to the All-Middle Georgia track team for the 300-meter hurdles, the Raiders could do no better than fourth in the region and qualified only Lucas and James Williams (3200 meters) for state competition.

Lucas was named most valuable trackman. Williams was awarded the coaches trophy. Other trophy winners were Cedric Newton, sprinter's trophy; Joh Wiggins, fielder's trophy; Williams, the distance trophy; Greg Thomas, rookie of the year; Russell McClellan, most improved.

Led by freshman Stacey Virgil, who was named to the All-Middle Georgia track team for the 800meters event, the Raiderettes finished third in the region behind Baldwin and Evans.

The fact that the Raiderettes were only able to qualify for state competition in three events was especially disappointing since they were the defending state champions. One contributing factor was the ankle injury which sidelined sprinter Audrey Alexander.

Baseball

On a roller coaster ride of wins and losses that ended up 4-7, the baseball team did manage to knock off the Southwest Patriots in the final regular game of the season. (The Patriots ultimately reached the AAAA semifinals, the best finish ever for a Southwest baseball team.)

Named best pitcher was Reginald Finney. Jimmy Huston was the best infielder. Alvin Harmon had the best batting average. Corey Williams hit the ball the most consistently.

Golf

The varsity golf team went 0-10.

Chris Peavy was named most valuable player in golf. Eric Quick was named second low medalist.

RAIDER BASERUNNER HUBERT HOGAN (7) safely scrambles back to the bag as the Baldwin Braves try to pick him off. ROBERT LEEK HEADS DOWN THE BACK STRETCH on the Raider home track with a couple of opponents close behind.

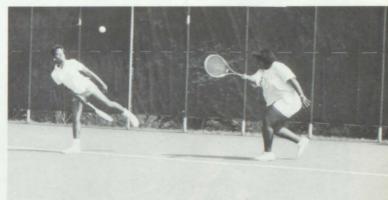

HURDLER DAVID LUCAS leads the pack as he clears a hurdle near the finish line on the Northeast track.

TRACK COACHES WALTER DANIELY AND ALVIN COPELAND time Australia Williams' finish.

CARLA FULTS AND JACK-IE HILL were the top girls' doubles team at Northeast.

Career Day visitors inspire students to Think possibilities

Nearly sixty professionals from a wide variety of fields gave up a couple of hours to discuss their careers with students during the Student Council-sponsored Career Planning Day in late March.

The visitors, who, for the most part, spoke to classes related to their field, were first welcomed to the campus in an assembly program attended by the senior class. During the program, Ms. Pamela Brown, Student Council adviser, recognized the boys'basketball team for their recent runner-up finish in the state AAAA tournament. Also part of the program was a skit titled "Just Say No," starring Carla Fults, David Moore, Albert Scott, Antonio Ridgeway, and Terrence Reynolds;a vocal number by the Male Ensemble; and an instrumental solo by Nathaniel Snead.

The invited speakers got high marks from students and teachers alike.

"Overall, I think the guests for Career Day were very good choices. They were prominent members of the community and had risen through the ranks of our city to get their jobs. I believe that Career Day was a success and congratulate those who picked the representatives," said junior David Neeley.

"The program was well-planned and well-executed. The students were attentive and the speakers were superb," said Mrs. Mary Alice Newberry, typing instructor.

"A program like this helps students realize that school, in general, and Northeast, in particular, is an integral part of the total community, not a separate institution existing in a vacuum," said Mrs. Maitland Hudson, French teacher.

CAREER DAY SPONSOR PAMELA BROWN recognizes the recent state runner-up finish of the boys' basketball team.

MR. ED FOSTER talks with the students in Mrs. Landrum's art classes about a career in commercial art.

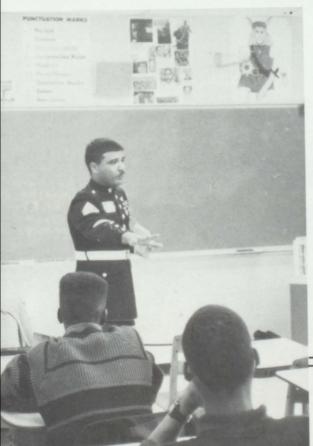

WMAZ-TV WEATHERMAN BILL POWELL talks with Mrs. Shirley Mackin's classes about a career in television.

MS. KYM CLARK, A NEWSCASTER FROM THE LOCAL NBC AFFILIATE, also discusses a career in television.

Prom had a 'timely' theme

Students, faculty, and their guests who attended the 1987 Junior-Senior Prom May 22 enjoyed an evening which cost the junior class almost $1600.

The rent for the Coliseum Monument Room was $600. Over $500 was spent on decorations; $280, for food; and $200 for the deejay, Clay T. All of the money was raised through junior dues.

The value of the prom exceeded its actual cost, of course. The program said, "Tonight is a very special evening for all of us since it will be our last night together before graduation sends us our separate ways."

Colors for the prom were peach and green. Southeastern Portraits, Inc. provided the portrait service.

Crowned Prom King and Queen were seniors Hector Pitts and Tanya Brown.

There was a faint smell of popcorn and distant sound of cheering in the outer lobby as, for the second year in a row, a wrestling match was held in the arena simultaneously with the prom.

Senior class officers were Jacqueline Hill, president; Eric Bell, vice-president; Janet Steele, secretary; Andre Bobo, treasurer; Juandalynn Harris, parliamentarian. Class sponsors were Ms. Pamela Brown, Mrs. Judy Fultz, Mr. Thurnell Johnson, and Mr. Lewis Wright.

Junior class officers were Ralph Redd, president; Keysha Knighton, vice-president; Shanel Bobo, secretary; Conya Reeves, treasurer; and Debra Searcy, parliamentarian. Class sponsors were Ms. Pamela Brown, Mrs. Sydney Chalfa, Mrs. Joyce Robinson, and Mrs. Erma Stevens.

SWAYING TO THE ROMANTIC RHYTHMS OF A SLOW DANCE, couples dance in each other's arms.

WITH REFRESHMENTS PRE-PARED, the young ladies acting as hostesses for the prom talk excitedly moments before the first couples arrive.

FRESHMEN ROBIN BELL AND APRIL COLEY slip into the restroom to check their hair and makeup.

Graduation ceremonies for the senior class symbolize

An open door to the future

Graduation ceremonies for the Class of 1987 took place on June 8 in the Macon Coliseum.

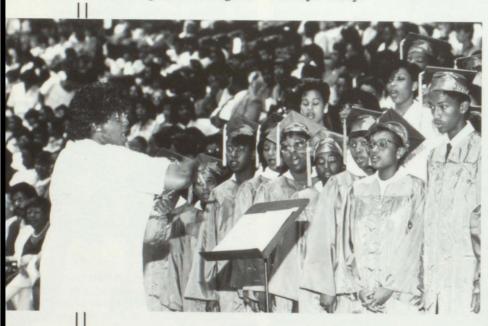

Presenting diplomas to the seniors were Dr. Thomas Hagler, Superintendent of Schools; and board members Dr. Doris Adams and Dr. Melvyn Williams.

Traditional student speeches were given. Andre Bobo and Jacqueline Hill shared the title of First Speaker and designation of highest honor graduate, since they tied first in the official class ranking. Joel Jenkins, an honor graduate, was selected Senior Speaker by vote of the senior class.

Other honor graduates, with a 3.75 GPA, included Barbara Billingslea, Audrey Harris, Tracey Hawkins, Windy Jenkins, Geraldine McGirt, Tonya Payne, Chiquita Roberts, Angela Spann, and Rosalyn Wiley.

Eric Bell, senior class vicepresident, gave the invocation; Denise Steele, senior class secretary, the benediction.

The ceremony also included the selection of "Flying Free" performed by the Northeast Chorus and the singing of the Alma Mater, composed by Mr. Harold L. Perdue, Jr., a 1978 graduate.

MRS. JUANITA FLOYD, CHORAL DIRECTOR, leads the chorus in "Flyin Free" by Don Besig.

CHECKING AND DOUBLECHECK-ING THAT SENIORS ARE LINED UP CORRECTLY, faculty members like Mr. Leon Nelson make sure that the ceremony goes off without a hitch.

GRADUATION CEREMONIES FOR NORTHEAST often take place in the spacious Macon Coliseum.

A MIXTURE OF FEELINGS — excitement, apprehension, seriousness, and mischief — are evident in the faces of seniors as they line up before the ceremony.

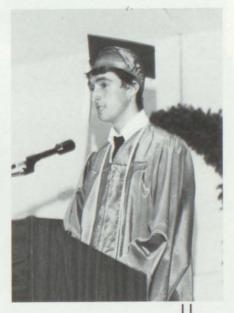

ANDRE BOBO, TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN THE CLASS ACADEMI-CALLY, was named First Speaker.

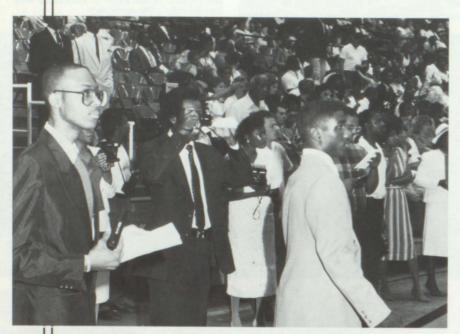

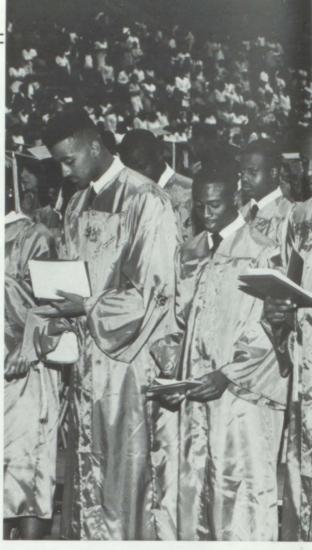

JACQUELINE HILL, TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN THE CLASS, was also named First Speaker.

SELECTED SENIOR SPEAKER by vote of the senior class was STAR student Joel Jenkins.

FAMILY MEMBERS CLUSTER ON THE COLISEUM FLOOR to take candid pictures of graduates as diplomas are presented. SENIORS AND AUDIENCE MEMBERS SING the Northeast Alma Mater written by Mr. Harold L. Perdue, Jr., a 1978 graduate.

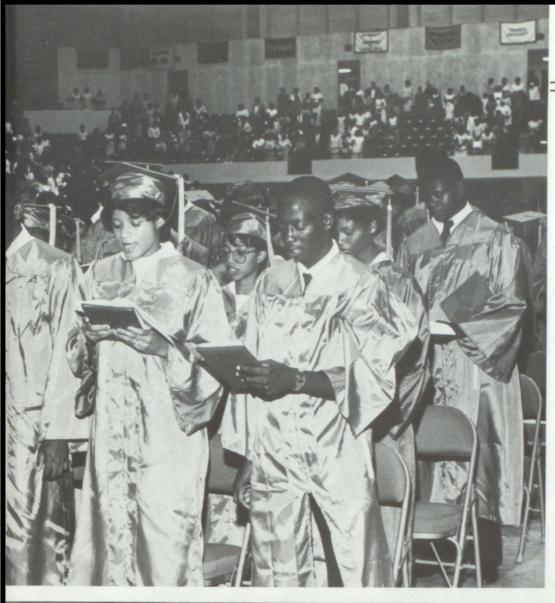

SENIOR CLASS MEMBERS LISTEN to the speeches of the three student speakers.

THERE WERE HUGS APLENTY following the ceremony as seniors sense inevitable separation from childhood friends.

ONE OF THE TRADITIONAL POINTS IN THE CEREMONY is the moment when seniors move their tassels to signify that they are now graduates.

HIGH FIVES, HOLLERING, AND HUGS are the way the graduates react as they leave the Coliseunm floor.

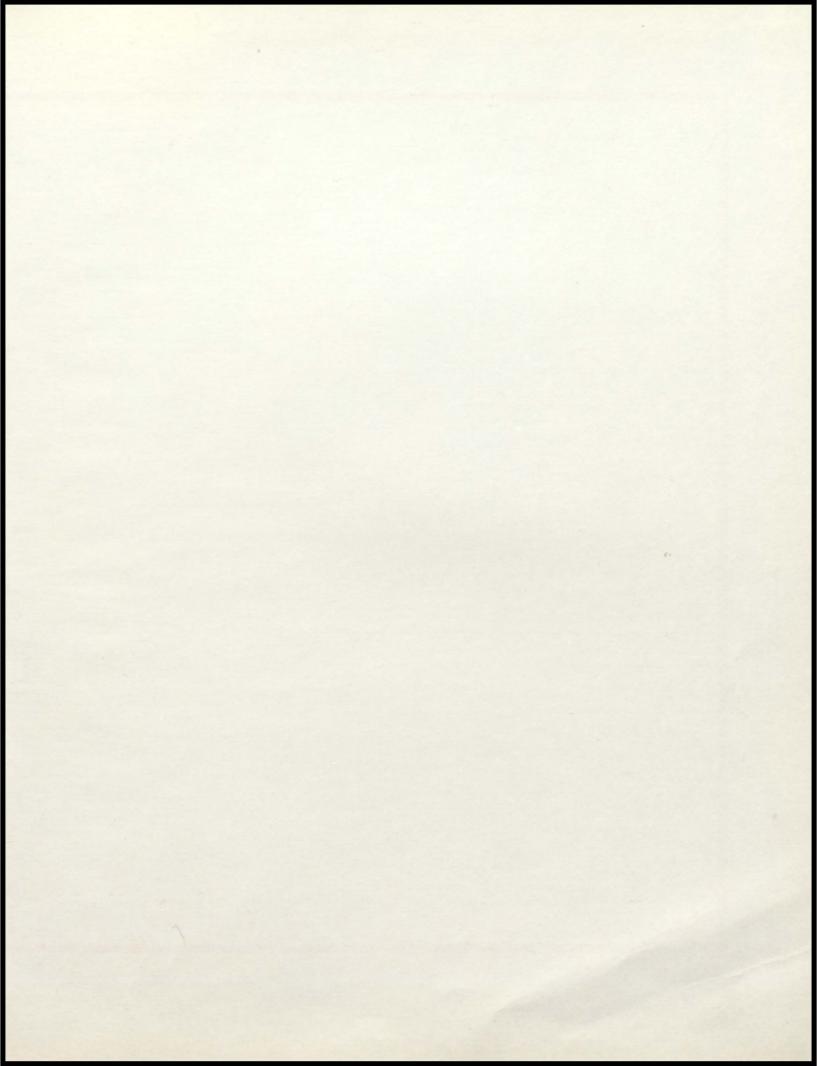

DR. DORIS ADAMS, THE NEWEST BOARD MEMBER, handed diploma covers to the seniors as principals read their names.

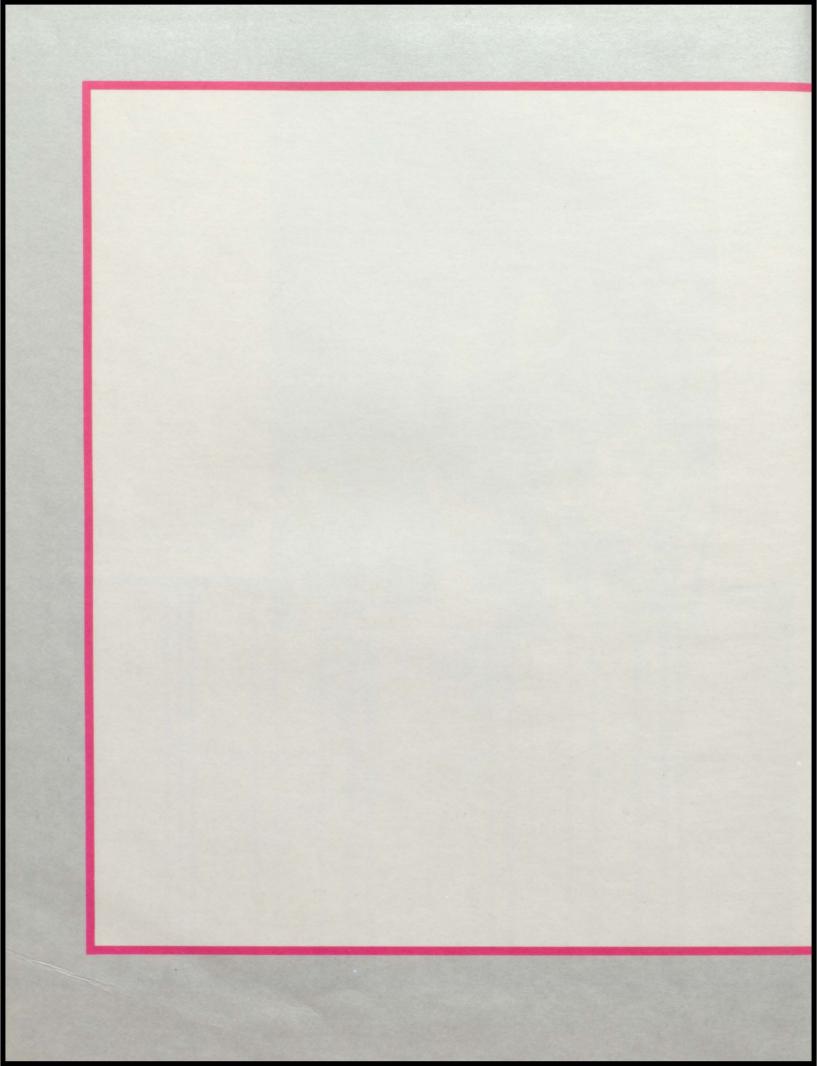

HAPPY FACES AT THE END OF THE GRADUATION CEREMONY reflect seniors who are ready for new challenges ahead.
